NAZIS SMASH TO DNIEPER BANKS

Here's First Eye-Witness Account From Russo-Nazi Battlefront

EDITOR'S NOTE: For six years, Alvin Steinkopf has been a Central European correspondent for the Associated Press. He gives here the first eye-witness account of the German-Russian war written by any American newspaperman, after a tour of the front conducted by German officers.

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

LWOW, Old Poland—(AP)—A swift, 660-mile tour of this now-blitzed battle area indicates that Soviet Russian troops assigned to defend the territory against German's drive to the east have had little, if any, effective support from the air.

As a guest of the German high command I travelled by automobile along highways littered with hundreds of battered tanks, smashed Russian cannon, scores of Russian tractors and a confusion of material left behind by the Red army.

During the tour I talked with hundreds of soldiers, but I encountered only a few who had seen a Russian plane. What planes there were seemed to have had little effect on the German drive eastward. Anti-aircraft gunners, who ride in columns or are stationed at strategic points in this region, have had comparatively little to do.

Thousands of Russian prisoners, many barefooted, marched back along the road we travelled. In one vast camp in conquered territory I saw about 4,000 Russian prisoners. The Germans had put them to work expanding the camp to make it ready to accommodate 50,000 prisoners. Many more than 50,000 must be cared for, German officers told me.

Germans, Russian prisoners and civilians told me almost everywhere I went that the Nazi army struck with such speed the Russians were rushed completely off their feet. They were bombed out of half-finished fortifications and retreated, abandoning equipment worth millions of dollars, I was told.

Many of the prisoners said they were members of the Russian labor service who had been given rifles at the last minute and were rushed into battle.

But there also were a goodly number of professional Russian soldiers and high officers.

Both Russians and Germans said the fighting had been bitter. Yet, strangely, the Germans on the south front apparently made little use of their most effective weapons—the swift tank. Hundreds of Russian tanks were destroyed in the region and the Germans said they were accounted for largely by infantry and specialist anti-tank troops.

Lwow escaped with comparatively little damage.

Several hundred persons were killed, however, and Germans said that in the last few days of Russian occupation hundreds of Ukrainians were rounded up and shot.

Most of the population seems utterly crushed and somewhat indifferent to anything that might happen.

Berlin Claims Troops Cross 'Bloody' River

Russians Counter With Report That German Losses Total 750,000 Asserts Invasion Halted Along Berezina, Druja.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—British military authorities said today they had no confirmation of a report that skirmishing has broken out between the Russians and the Japanese on the Mongolian and Manchukuoan frontiers.

(By Associated Press)

A German invasion force, at last smashing into the Stalin line, has crossed the bloody Berezina river and reached the banks of the Dnieper in its two-week-old drive toward Moscow, the German high command reported today.

This flat announcement was made in the face of Russian claims that the Berezina river sector had been turned into a watery death trap for thousands of Germans and meant, if true, that the Germans were about 300 miles from Moscow, having traversed more than 300 miles of Russian territory, counting the Polish buffer zone.

Russian claims were highlighted by a declaration that the drive thus far had cost the Germans nearly 750,000 losses in dead, wounded and prisoners—a smashing of the elite divisions of the German army.

The Red army declared its stand along the Berezina and Druja waterways had rolled back terrific German assaults, with Germans caught in a destructive hail of artillery and machine-gun fire in the very waters there to be carried, wounded or dying, downstream.

This, to credit the Russian reports, was the modern counterpart of the rout of Napoleon—with variations. Napoleon's grande armee was cut to pieces on the bloody Berezina in its 1812 flight from Moscow. Now, the Germans are meeting fierce resistance there on the way to Moscow.

Not far east of the Berezina and the waterway system to the north which includes the Druja lies the Stalin line—the Red army's principal fortifications.

By the German version, panzer columns which flanked France's Maginot line were rolling toward it for their major test against the Soviet Union.

The center of the fiercest fighting and the direst threat to Moscow apparently extended north from Bobruisk through Borisov on the Berezina to almost a 200-mile battlefront, anchored at the north on the junction of the Latvian and old Russian frontiers.

The Russians earlier said the fighting extended past Lepel on the Berezina canal, 40 miles north of Borisov. The town of Druja, on the stream of the same name, is 60 miles further north and lies east of Dvinsk.

The Germans claim to have reached the Latvian frontier of old Russia after a march through Lithuania and Latvia, two of the Baltic states Russia had absorbed as a buffer zone. The Russians

BOMBERS STRIKE AT NAVAL BASES

RAF Straddles Nazi Warships With Bombs In Harbor; Cherbourg Hit.

(By United Press)

LONDON — British bombers struck savagely at German naval bases in occupied France during the night, straddling three Nazi warships at Brest with high explosives and blasting moored submarines at Lorient, the air ministry said today.

The German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the new 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen were straddled with high explosive bombs during a heavy raid on Brest, the air ministry said, adding that "fires were started on Dockside buildings."

At Lorient, German U-boat base, "bombs fell among moored submarines and much damage was done to docks and the harbor," it was added.

Lighter bomber forces attacked the docks at Cherbourg, industrial targets in the German Rhineland, where Bremen was subjected to day and night bombings yesterday, and the railway yards at Abbeville in the north of France, the air ministry said.

The air ministry reported that two German night fighters were shot down and admitted the loss of four British bombers.

Blenheim bombers, "with a powerful fighter escort," attacked an important power station, a chemical works and a railroad junction near Bethune, France, in the afternoon sweeps, the air ministry announced. United States pilots participated.

Sixteen German fighters were

TWO CAPTURED

O.S.R. Inmates Who Fled Farm Caught In Columbus.

Two inmates of Ohio State Reformatory who walked away from the institution's farm on the North Main street road Wednesday were apprehended in Columbus yesterday.

The men, Homer Riffett, 21, of Lawrence county, and George Groom, 21, of Pickaway county, were picked up by railroad detectives at Columbus, Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent, said today.

Riffett had served two years of a 10-25 year sentence for robbery and Groom had served nearly a year of a one- to three-year sentence for obtaining property under false pretenses.

Glattke said that he had not been informed of the details concerning the capture of the inmates.

Begin 'Reducing' March 265 Miles From Cleveland

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Bernarr McFadden breezed into Cleveland today to give a personal send-off to the 45 stout-hearted men and women who intend to walk from Cleveland to Dansville, N. Y., a distance of 265 miles.

The 73-year-old publisher would like nothing better than to accompany them but thinks he will have to fly back to Dansville later today.

The marchers, including 11 women who weigh over 200 pounds and hope to shrink a little en-route, stepped off a public square at 8:30 this morning. Their first stop is Willoughby. They expect to march 20 miles a day for 13 days, accompanied by a truck which will serve their noon-day meal of cracked wheat.

Oldest hiker was 69-year-old Joseph J. Barnett of Cincinnati, who was making his first hike for MacFadden but who asserts he has made 19 hikes of 50 miles each. Reuben Clark, 64-year-old St. Louis osteopath, was making his third hike.

Predict Delay for Draft Law Changes

SENATE HEARS GO-SLOW TALK

Administration Lieutenant Circulates Report on Marshall Request.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The "war cabinet" assembled at the White House today immediately following President Roosevelt's return from Hyde Park to discuss urgent defense problems with the commander-in-chief.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Word spread in the senate today that General George C. Marshall's sweeping recommendations for revision of the draft laws might be put aside for awhile.

This report, originated by an administration lieutenant who asked not to be quoted by name, circulated at the capitol while Senator McNary (R., Ore.) minority leader, voiced his outspoken opposition to Marshall's proposal for keeping selectees and National Guardsmen on duty for longer than a year and asking the right to send American soldiers out of this hemisphere.

On the other hand, Robert P Patterson, assistant secretary of war, approved the recommendations which the chief of staff made Thursday. Patterson said he did not know whether such steps would be necessary, but added that "we should have an army prepared for whatever emergency we may meet."

Expressing the views that Marshall's recommendations would require considerable study by the White House before they could be offered to congress, an administration spokesman added that they probably would be withheld until overwhelming congressional approval was assured. Such approval, he added, could not be obtained at present and probably would be possible only if there were some new threat to American security.

McNary told reporters he saw "nothing in the present emer-

AIR JAP SPYING

Dies Hearing Will Include West Coast Activity.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The Dies committee will launch a series of public hearings in the near future which will include a searching inquiry into activity of alleged Japanese espionage organizations on the Pacific coast, it was disclosed today.

Committee plans also call for issuance of a "Fascist book," describing activity of Fascist organizations in the United States, and hearings upon Communist and Nazi penetration of labor unions.

An important public hearing, the nature of which is being kept secret, is planned in New York. Another hearing is scheduled to be held in Philadelphia.

Scenes at Mansfield's Independence Day Celebration at Fairground

By ROBERT HUFFMAN

Bursting rockets releasing showers of colorful pyrotechnics, and an ear-splitting, tooth-rattling finale of powerful bombs thrilled an estimated 20,000 persons gathered at the Fairground last night for Mansfield's fifth annual community Independence day celebration.

Other thousands watched the colorful display from porches and roof-tops of their homes, and hundreds of automobiles lined nearby roads, their occupants craning their necks to watch the display.

It was perhaps the biggest crowd ever to attend a fireworks demonstration in Mansfield. Cars streamed toward the fairground for hours before the show opened at 9:30 p. m. Traffic for blocks around the Fairground moved at a slow pace during the outpouring of cars after the finale. There were no serious tie-ups, largely because police were stationed at every intersection and kept the flow of traffic from running into a jam.

The 45-minute show brought to a successful close Mansfield's observance of the nation's 165th Independence Day anniversary. The program began early in the afternoon with formal flag raising ceremonies by Boy Scouts of Troop 5 and a welcoming address by Mayor William J. Locke.

Set up as a modern version of the eruption of Mt. Pelee, spectators were treated to a ground

MT. VERNON, N. Y. — (INS) — Julius L. Otto, an employe of the German consulate in New York which now is closed, was found dead in the bathroom of his home here today, a noose around his neck.

Otto, who was 54, apparently had hanged himself to the shower rack which had broken under the weight of his body. Mrs. Josephine Otto, wife of the consulate employe, found the crumpled body on the floor at seven a. m.

BLAST WRECKS SWIMMING POOL

Children's Home Play Spot Damaged by Explosion of Mysterious Origin.

Because a mysterious explosion wrecked the swimming pool of the Richland County Children's home on Hedges street today at 1 a. m., instead of during the day when it would have been filled with youngsters, 40 to 50 children escaped possible injury.

Mansfield police and officials of the home were unable to explain the explosion which lifted tiles from the bottom of the pool to the water surface. Theories on its cause ranged from a huge firecracker to dynamite or even sewer or natural gas.

CHARGED WITH FUND SHORTAGE

Springfield City Employe Named In Examiner's Report.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Miss Catherine Caffrey, Springfield, cashier, of the Springfield city water department, was charged with responsibility for a shortage of $3,441.70 in the department's account, in an audit report filed today with State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The shortage, according to the report, represented water and sewer rental revenues which had been collected but not deposited in the treasury by Miss Caffrey.

The report made a finding against Miss Caffrey and her bonding company for recovery of the amount of the shortage.

County Escapes as Holiday Toll Takes 27 Lives In Ohio

Mansfield and Richland county escaped without a fatality in Fourth of July holiday accidents yesterday and only four persons were injured, none seriously, in the city and county despite the heaviest traffic of the year.

Holiday mishaps, however, claimed at least 27 lives in Ohio while the national toll mounted to 188 today. It was the first time in recent years that the state escaped without a death from fireworks accidents. Only one person was reported killed in the nation by fireworks.

In counties adjoining Richland, an 11-year-old girl was killed and 15 persons were injured, three seriously, in five traffic mishaps.

Only victim in north central Ohio was Betty Joan Lake, 11, of Rowsburg, Ashland county, who was fatally injured when she was struck by a car on U. S. route 250 as she left a neighbor's house to return home.

The little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake, was struck Thursday afternoon by a car driven by Homer Hott of Homersville and died Thursday night in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, without regaining consciousness.

The child was preparing to leave with her family for a holiday visit with her grandfather in Mt. Clemens, Mich., when she was fatally hurt. Authorities said the car skidded onto the sidewalk when

EARTH CURRENTS BRING BLACKOUT

By Northern Light Interference Through Northern Lights.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Magnetic earth currents early today disrupted wire and wireless communications and for several hours before dawn blacked out all radio and cable contact with Europe.

The disturbances, described by technicians as akin to those sometimes caused by aurora borealis, or northern lights, appeared to be clearing as morning progressed.

NBC and CBS reported paralysis of short wave reception. Western Union said its ground wires were affected during the night, but that spasmodic interruption ceased by mid-morning. American Telephone and Telegraph reported similar ground wire difficulty, and RCA communications and press wireless said their service was impeded frequently.

Registrants in the second draft call were men who had reached their 21st birthday since the first registration last October.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Tales From Times Square.

Army stories and tales of camp life are floating from Broadway bar to Broadway bistro these evenings, many of them probably revivals from the last war. One, passed on by Tito Guizar, concerns the sergeant who was patiently addressing a group of rookies after a long session of drilling.

Dorothy Kilgallen

"When I was a little boy," he said sweetly, "I liked nothing better than my little wooden soldiers. But one day I found a poor boy who had no toys at all, and I gave him my wooden soldiers. After it was too late, I wanted them back—and my mother comforted me. She said not to worry—someday I'd get my wooden soldiers back again.

"And by all that's holy, you lame-brained numbskulls — that day has come!"

At Lindy's the other night some of the more jealous Times Squareites were giving a going-over to Mama Berle's absent boy, Milton.

"Oh, a lot of people say his gags are old," spoke up a lone defender, "but I never recognize any of them."

"That," said a Berle-baiter, "is because they're all wearing whiskers!"

At a Claremont Inn table, Edna Ferber was telling Fannie Hurst about a recent Hollywood epic she'd seen at a local cinema.

"It was one of those plots," she said, "where you can't wait to see what will happen."

"So you do," finished Fannie, "and nothing does!"

Vivienne Segal and a chorine from "Pal Joey" were walking down 52nd street and they passed Twenty One.

"Some day," sighed the chorine, "I wish I could afford to go in there—and not!"

Robert Elwyn reports this one. His Woodstock Players were conducting initial rehearsals in their Upstate theater when they found they could scarcely be heard from the chattering of a family of starlings that had nested in the eaves. The players tried shouting louder, but the bird cries still persisted.

"For gosh sakes," finally shouted Elwyn, "I wish there was some way of making those birds shut up!"

A feathery head rose indignantly from the nest.

"All you have to do," it snapped, "is ask us!"

* * *

Ozzie Nelson is telling the silly about the two cannibals who were cooking dinner.

"Honey," said the hungry boy cannibal to his mate, "throw another lug on the fire!"

Victor Moore tells a tale of two does who were looking for a buck, which in deer language means a fellah. Running gracefully through the woods they came upon a beauty.

"What do you think of him?" asked Jane Doe.

"Think of him?" repeated the other. "Why, he's the antler to a maiden's prayer!"

* * *

At Dinty Moore's a film executive in town for the nonce was lambasting the younger generation for lack of go-gettishness. "They're too soft nowadays," he beefed. "Why, look at me. When I got out of school I went straight to the president of the firm I had set my heart on, asked for a job, and got it on the spot."

"And then," added a cynic, "you said, 'Thanks, Dad'."

A notorious bore corners Danny Kaye at the Ruban Bleu and launched into a story—which was shortly punctuated by an eloquent Kaye yawn.

"Oh," sighed the disappointed bore, "you've heard it!"

At Reuben's a pal was chiding George Burns about his avoidance of exercise. "Look how soft you are," he pointed out. "You should exercise and keep fit."

"But I get plenty of exercise," Burns protested. "Every week I go to the horror pictures at the Rialto and let my flesh creep!"

Another draft story is the one Jimmy Cannon relays from Camp Dix. He alleges that one of the sergeants there called up a rookie who didn' know quite what to do at the command to halt.

"Higgins," the officer demanded, "what in blazes did you do before you were drafted?"

"I drove a milk wagon," the private replied.

So the next time he wanted the company to stop, the sergeant called:

"Squad, halt! Higgins, whoa!"

A famous deb, who is in bad repute with the Stork club set, had nerve enough to breeze in the other night, anyway.

"You've got to say this for her," observed Mark Hanna, "She's game."

"Yes," agreed Virginia Peine, "Everybody's!"

WEIRTON STEEL AGREES TO MEET PART OF ORDER

Tells NLRB It Will Re-employ 10 of 17 Men Ordered to Be Reinstated.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH — The Weirton Steel company notified the national labor relations board today that it will comply in part with the recent NLRB order issued against the steel comapny.

The company said it was offering reemployment to 10 of the 17 men ordered reinstated but added that it would not pay back wages.

President T. E. Millsop reiterated his belief the company did not receive a fair hearing from the board but said that since the employe representation plan and the employes security league have dissolved "there is no point in our contesting the matter further in the courts."

The representation plan and the security league were tabbed by the NLRB as "company unions" and the Weirton concern was ordered to withdraw recognition from them.

Officials of the ERP and the security league notified the company on Thursday that they were disbanding.

Formation of the Weirton independent union was announced by workers last week after the NLRB ordered the company to withdraw recognition from the ERP and the league. The new independent union has asked Weirton officials for recognition and a meeting was scheduled for today.

The company said it would not offer employment to two men who have served jail sentences for violation of the election laws by signing communist party petitions. Immediate reemployment of three others will have to be held in abeyance until a decision is made by the war department as to whether these men can be employed on defense work, the company said.

ASKS $50,000

Mansfielder Who Lost Leg In Accident, Files Suit.

A Mansfield man, who lost his right leg when an auto ploughed into the rear of a state highway department's truck last March, has filed suit in Ashland county common pleas court for $50,000 damages against Elvira Malaragno, publisher of the newspaper, La Voce del Popolo Italiano of Cleveland.

Roy N. Ferguson, 482 Louise avenue, a laborer with the highway department, charges that a car owned by the Cleveland woman and driven by her husband, Charles, hit the rear of the truck on U. S. Route 32 on March 23 near Ashland.

Ferguson's right leg was amputated at mid-thigh and his left ankle fractured in the accident. He further claims that the driver was under the influence of liquor.

BUCYRUS—Clarence F. Riddle, 71, a retired carpenter, died at his home here early today. He had been ill the past six weeks.

Surviving are his widow, Lucinda; a son, Walter, Bucyrus; one grandchild; a brother, Edward J., Tiffin, a half brother, Charles Riddle, Marion, and a sister, Mrs. Veda Thombs, Wadsworth.

Rural Reverend Resigns, Rated Letter Luminary

CHARDON—(INS)—Well known in northeastern Ohio for his alliterations, Rev. Cromwell C. Cleveland, pastor of Chardon Christian church, resigned today, effective Oct. 1.

Rev. Cleveland said he had no plans after three and one half years in the pastorate.

One Sunday Rev. Cleveland described the prodigal son in this alliterative manner:

"This loose, lavish, lustful lad—a lazy libertine, had lost his love for the Lord and all things lofty, and was living in luxury; but now at the length of his lifting lark, being listless and lank, he longed for at least a little lunch, for he had at last languidly limped to a loathsome level that was lamentably lousy and low."

Even the pastor's title is an alliteration:

"Rev. Cromwell C. Cleveland, pastor of Chardon Christian Church."

ONE DIES, 29 HURT IN BLAZE

Blasts Hurl Men Across Street As New York Fire Smolders For 24 Hours.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A roaring blaze which had smoldered undetected more than 24 hours in a brick building on lower Broadway killed one fireman early today and injured 29 others.

The body of the dead man, Carl Bischoff, was carried out two hours after the fire was declared under control.

The injured were taken to hospitals, where they were found to be suffering mainly from burns.

They were hurled across the street by two blasts—backdrafts—of smoke and flames that broke the early morning silence of the financial district like major explosions.

Heavy steel-shuttered windows popped like corks from the six-story building housing Modell's sporting goods store on lower Broadway between Fulton and John streets as firemen responding to four alarms crashed in a vestibule door.

The flames, which firemen believed started in the tightly-shut building Thursday night and gained potential force between then and 4 a. m. (EST), today shot through the structure's roof and spread to the seventh floor of an adjacent building.

Witnesses said the flames licked as high as 22 stories, sighting this heights on nearby taller buildings.

The sound of the two backdrafts—most dreaded hazard in battling a blaze—sounded like explosions and the bomb squad was on hand to investigate, but reported no evidence of a bomb.

TRUSTEES GET COURT ORDER

Board Told To Purchase Tile For Washington Farmer.

Washington township trustees had been ordered today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston to purchase 36 feet of 24-inch tile for Harvey Maglott, Washington township farmer, for use on his farm.

Maglott had brought an action against the trustees, contending that they passed a resolution several months ago providing for purchase of the tile but had not delivered it to him. He said the trustees built a culvert under a township road near his farm, causing a large amount of surface water to flow over his land.

An alternative writ of mandamus issued against the trustees instructed them to provide the tile for Maglott or to appear in court July 11 to show cause why they failed to carry out the order.

CLAIM SETTLED

Judge Approves $400 Payment as Accident Damages.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer today had authorized William Hoverstick, Lexington, to accept $400 from John L. Beach and Philip Beach of Seville as damages for injuries received by Miss Ruth Hoverstick, his daughter, last April 12 in an automobile accident on U. S. Route 42 south of South Boulevards.

Payment of the claim will free John L. Beach, owner of one of the cars involved in the crash, from further liability in the case. Miss Hoverstick was injured when the car in which she was riding with Miss Glenna Jean Campbell of Lexington figured in a collision with one operated by Philip Beach, a minor.

CONFER TODAY IN ATTEMPT TO AVERT NEW SOFT COAL WALKOUT

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Full negotiating committees for the United Mine Workers (CIO) and soft coal operators were summoned for a meeting at 2 p. m. (EST) today with both sides reporting "progress" to avert a walkout of 150,000 miners on next Tuesday.

The UMW policy committee has authorized President John L. Lewis to call the workers from the mines on that date unless an agreement is reached.

At the conclusion of yesterday's conference, Lewis and L. Ebersole Gaines, spokesman for the southern operators, issued this terse, joint statement:

"We have made some progress and we are calling in our associates from the field for a full conference at 2 p. m. tomorrow."

Previous negotiations were halted June 24 when all but Harlan County, Ky., operators had agreed to the opposed contract. The operators contended that 12 producers were willing to sign but Lewis insisted on an "all-or-nothing" agreement.

A strike would affect most mines in Virginia, southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and northern Tennessee, with only "captive" mines serving steel mills and electric utilities exempt from the order.

DIES AT CLINIC

H. F. Schwarz, 57, Restaurant Operator, Succumbs.

Herman Frederick Schwarz, 57, Mansfield's restaurant operator for more than 20 years, died early yesterday at the Cleveland Clinic where he had gone two weeks ago for an operation.

Born in Cleveland, Mr. Schwarz came to Mansfield in 1920 and shortly afterward opened a restaurant on East Fourth street.

He was one of the city's most prominent restaurateurs, operating establishments on Fourth and East Third streets and the Schwarz tavern on Lexington avenue road which was destroyed by fire early this year. At the time of his death, he was operating a restaurant on East Third street.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Goldie Emrick Schwarz, and a sister, Mrs. George Stockhaus of Cleveland. He was a member of the Lutheran church and several Masonic bodies and was a member of Al Koran shrine in Cleveland and the Grotto in Canton.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 3:30 p. m. at the Finefrock funeral home with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

TELEPHONE LINE SCRAP IN COURT

Right-of-Way Dispute Before Judge Again For Ruling.

A dispute over a telephone right-of-way across the Dudley Donough farm west of Butler was back in Richland county common pleas court today with the Mansfield Telephone company seeking to appropriate a 12-foot strip of land across the farm for a telephone line.

Action was filed by the telephone company on the recommendation of the court which previously had granted an alternative writ requiring the company to start proceedings to acquire the necessary strip of land.

The writ was granted following the hearing of Donough's petition for an injunction to enjoin the company from erecting a line on his farm.

The Donough farm is on state route 97 at the Worthington-Jefferson township line between Bellville and Butler.

Laff-a-Day

"We sell these two as a set. The terrier is the 'seeing eye' for sheep dog."

Patriotism hit a new high last night at the fairgrounds when the band played "Of Thee I Sing," which is NOT the national anthem. No sooner had the opening bars of the tune (the same tune that the British use to sing "God Save the King") become audible than the entire audience stood in reverant silence. The national anthem, for which Americans are supposed to stand, is "The Star Spangled Banner," which is also written to the tune of a British song. The audience also stood for the national anthem later in the program, and the band played on.

It is a common experience for police to aid crying youngsters who stray away from their homes, but last night a grown man made such an appeal. A Shiloh resident, evidently a too zealous Independence Day celebrator, rang a doorebll of a Washington avenue home, and with tears in his eyes, told the home-owner that he was lost. Mansfield police upon arrival found the man weeping but were unimpressed by his tale of woe. They booked him on an intoxication charge.

A southern Richland county chestnut forest, once famous throughout the state, is pictured in the current issue of the Ohio Conservation Bulletin as an example of the kind of trees that grew in the county before disease struck the forests. The hills in the vicinity of Butler and Bellville once were covered with huge chestnut trees and people went there by the scores in the fall to gather the nuts. Easy victims for tree diseases, the trees have virtually been destroyed.

There was excitement at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday until a plumber willing to give up his holiday plans could be found. A leak in the bathroom pipe threatened to send the kitchen ceiling plaster, below the bathroom, tumbling down unless immediate repairs were made. Miss Margaret McBride, in charge of the building, reports that no damage was done because a workman consented to devote half the holiday to repairing the leak.

ANGERED OVER NOISE MADE BY FIRECRACKERS

Pistol Bullet Caroms From Car Window After Aged Officer Fires Shot.

(By United Press)

XENIA — Prosecutor Marcus Shoup of Green county said today that Hayes A. McLean, 72-year-old village marshal of Cedarville, had confessed he fired the shot which killed Wallace G. Collins, 18, as the youth and five companions rode through Cedarville streets Thursday night.

McLean was quoted as saying he became angered over the shooting of firecrackers and torpedos in front of his home and in downtown Cedarville the day and evening before July 4th.

McLean said he stepped beside his home in the darkness and fired a .38 caliber revolver once, intending to shoot at the tires of the passing car which Collins was driving.

Instead the revolver "pulled up" as he jerked the trigger and the bullet caromed off the half-open left rear window glass of the car and struck Collins in the back of the head.

McLean previously maintained he was in bed at time of the shooting although companions of Collins said they saw a flash of fire by McLean's house just before Collins was wounded.

Ballistic experts from the state bureau of apprehension were summoned to help solve the shooting. Shoup said that McLean submitted voluntarily to a paraffin test of his hands and that the experts determined he had fired a gun about the time of the shooting.

McLean was quoted as saying he shot Collins accidentally. He said he tossed the revolver into a cistern in his home.

The prosecutor said that some degree of homicide would be charged against McLean. The case will be presented to the grand jury at an early date.

Collins was the son of Jahn W. Collins, president of the Cedarville board of education.

The victim was graduated from Cedarville high school in 1940 and attended Ohio State university for one year.

Farmers Get Last Chance to Sign Ordnance Options

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Farmers owning land adjacent to the Plum Brook Ordnance works at Sandusky today were given 10 days to sign options with army representatives or face court action seeking prices lower than now offered.

Lieut. Col. B. F. Vandervoort, Zone V construction quartermaster, said that 13 of 18 owners of 1,400 acres of land needed for the plant are "holding out for exorbitant prices."

"The army has waited long enough but will give the land owners one more chance to sign options he added.

Setting a July 15 deadline, Vandervoort warned:

"If the landowners fail to accept the offers made, to them by that time, the United States Attorney will be obliged to institute action to process each case for final conclusions in the federal court."

OHIO VFW SET FOR ELECTION

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio Veterans of Foreign Wars prepared today to elect new officers and wind up their three-day convention after adopting a 43-point "Americanism" program which included a demand for removal of Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins and an investigation by the Ohio legislature into alleged subversive activities in Ohio schools.

The resolution condemning Miss Perkins charged that she had "demonstrated her inability to run the office" and has "sympathy for known subversive elements and causes."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—By stepping up to the old red barn and peering through the broken window-glass, you could get a camera's-eye view of the sort of trial William Dieterle's been dreaming about.

For the tall white-gloved director in the straw hat a trial scene is a labor of love and perhaps that's why his trials, unlike many are no trial to an audiance. Look at the Dieterle record and you'll find courtrooms figuring in the most dramatic sequences of his films — in "Emile Zola," in "Louis Pasteur," in "Dr Ehrich's Magic Bullet" and so on. To Dieterle a movie without a trial scene is a trial indeed

But I don't see how he can ever get another like the one in "The Devil and Daniel Webster." This trial is the climax. In this old barn, young farmer Jabez Stone (James Craig) is on trial for his soul The prosecutor is Mr Scratch himself Walter Huston), who has made a deal with Jabez Seven years of prosperity and good luck in exchange for Jabez's soul. Now Mr Scratch is suing to collect, and Daniel Webster, friend of Jabez is conducting the defense. (That's Edward Arnold, who took over when Thomas Mitchell was hurt in that runaway horse accident.)

Both judge and jury are from hell. The judge H B Warner) has been dead longer than the others—and he had rated hell for corrupting his high office while on earth (Warner is a ghastly sight, in tattered black robe and green or chartreuse make-up. "On the screen," he says, "I merely look dead.")

The jury is a regular rogue's gallery—pirates, traitors, cutthroats, villains all, at Mr. Scratch's service. With the cards thus stacked against him, Edward Arnold Webster has an oratorical fight on his hands. It's quite a speech—eight pages of dialogue, in all, and one take that covers three pages by itself.

This is near the last day of the film, and I don't know what Dieterle will do next unless it's to look for more courtrooms to conquer, but I have a hunch what Warner, the "dead" judge, will do. He'll go fishing. That's what he did after his last make-up ordeal, and he caught a couple of whopping swordfish and brought back a harrowing tale of the one that got away.

BERLIN CLAIMS NAZIS SMASH TO DNIEPER RIVER

Moscow Asserts Invasion Force Halted at Shores of Berezina, Druja.

have acknowledged a rectification of their lines in the Latvian border region.

Moscow and Berlin accounts of how close the hard-driven German spearheads were to the deep Russian defense belt differed, but the test appeared to be shaping up on the shortest line to Moscow—east of Dvinsk, and between the Berezina and Dnieper rivers toward Mogilev and Vitbesk.

A Russian communique declared the Germans had been unable to cross the Berezina despite three days of unceasing assault, but acknowledged the withdrawal of Red troops under heavy pressure in the lake-dotted region to the north.

In this sector, the Russians declared, they were forced back from the Dvinsk area toward the fortification system inside old Russia south of Pskov, and from Lepel in northern White Russia, within 70 miles of the forts centered about Vitebsk.

On the southern front the Red army was reported in Moscow to be standing firm against an onset by numerically-superior forces driving toward the old Ukraine at Tarnopol.

A Moscow radio broadcast said the gains had cost the Germans almost 750,000 men killed, wounded and captured and asserted "the best divisions of the German army have been smashed."

The Germans, however, reported crossing the Berezina river in several places, rolling on toward the Dnieper and the Stalin line little more than 50 miles to the east.

A special Berlin communique said last night 20,000 more Soviet soldiers had surrendered in a pocket near Minsk, bringing to 180,000 the number of prisoners the Nazis have claimed captured in the first two weeks of fighting.

A Rome radio broadcast said German and Italian troops had reached the Dnestr river, old southwestern frontier of the Ukraine, after driving 60 miles across the newly-Sovietized buffer front.

Bomb explosions straddling Germany's repeatedly-attacked battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the big Nazi cruiser Prinz Eugen, raiding companion of the sunken Bismarck, were scored in a night raid on the harbor at Brest, the British air ministry declared today.

In the same sweep along the Nazi-held French coast the RAF was said to have blasted the U-boat base at Lorient, pouring explosives among moored submarines and damaging docks and buildings.

The ministry said other flights attacked docks at Cherbourg, railroad yards at Abbeville and Rhineland industrial targets.

The Luftwaffe also struck across the English channel, bombing sections of Britain's industrial Midlands in the sharpest raids of the summer.

Half-way around the world, Japan disclosed she is considering an extension of her territorial waters which would cut off Russia's big Pacific port of Vladivostok from American war supplies. A Japanese spokesman declared yesterday that no decision had been reached.

In Shanghai and London reports were heard that Japan, in a deal with the reich, was about to spring a new drive south—aimed at southern French Indo-China and perhaps Thailand—which would bring her forces closer to the British naval base at Singapore and to The Netherlands East Indies.

Observers at Shanghai said such a move would be intended to tie up British forces in the South Pacific and to divert American attention to the east.

Colorado Woman Knows How To Detect Missourians.

PUEBLO, Colo.—(AP)—Policeman E. R. Billings was standing on a street corner. A strange woman stopped before him, scrutinized him carefully and announced:

"You betcha," said Policeman Billings. "But how did you guess?"

"I can always tell," said the lady and she marched on.

Survey Shows Working Woman Needs $1,100 Annual Income

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) — A single working woman needs an annual income of more than $1,100 in order to live "a wholesome life in accordance with the standards of the community."

This is the finding of the Heller Committee for Research in Social Economics at the University of California, based on reports taking the city of San Francisco into particular reference but applying generally in other parts of the nation.

For a model budget formulated by the committee, a single working woman living alone and not having dependents must have an annual income of $1,116.52.

Monthly expenses include $48.15 for room and board, with allowances for her to eat lunches and Sunday dinners in restaurants. Also $29.15 a month is allocated for medical and dental care, carfare, savings, charities, gifts and entertainment.

The budget suggests $167.85 for her wardrobe, and $150.78 per year to keep up her stock of clothing. Her hats must not cost more than $1.98, her coats $24.42, dresses $7.78 and shoes $3.69.

Her cosmetic expenses for a year should not exceed $7.14, but the budget provides for two permanent waves and 22 shampoos and fingerwaves annually.

She should be prepared to spend $50 yearly on routine medical and dental care, with another $50 saved as an emergency fund. Her annual carfare expenditures should be $57.26. She can go to one movie a week, provided the ticket doesn't cost more than 37 cents. At her three plays or concerts each year she must sit in a $1.10 seat.

Newspapers, magazines and books should not cost her more than $6.00 per year and her one-week vacation each year should not cost more than $22.51.

With a boy friend to provide some of the movies, concerts, dinners and such, the situation naturally changes radically, researchers explained. But their formal report doesn't go into that.

BEARS DECREASE

Huge Animals Getting Scarcer In Canada, Government Reports.

OTTAWA, Canada—(AP)—Fishing bears that prowl the banks of small streams in the Queen Charlotte islands off the British Columbia coast are a big headache to fisheries officials—but there aren't as many as there used to be.

Ninety-one of the marauders were shot in 1940, reports to the fisheries department said. Bears are numerous in the islands. Officials said that along one small section of beach ten of the animals were seen scooping out pawfuls of salmon as the big fish began ascending creeks to the spawning grounds.

Colorado's output of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc was worth an estimated $22,235,979 in 1939.

Four Mansfielders suffered cuts and bruises at 2:45 a. m. today when the cars in which they were riding collided at Fifth and Bowman streets and went up over the curb onto the sidewalk. Treated at General hospital and by physicians were Dwight Altman, 19, of Mansfield R. D. 2, driver of one of the cars; Miss Virginia Sutton, 23, of 619 Harter avenue, and Myron Blackledge, 18, of 354 Daisy street, who were riding with him, and Clarence L. Horn, 122 East Fourth street, who was operating the second car.

Twelve persons were injured in three automobile acidents late Thursday and Friday on State Route 3 near Loudonville. One of them, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pinnick of Ravenna, is in Wooster hospital with a skull fracture.

The Pinnick girl and her parents were injured when their car went off the highway seven miles northeast of Loudonville Thursday afternoon while they were enroute to Florida.

Four persons were injured in another accident near the same spot when a car driven by Godfrey Holmes, 50, Cleveland Heights, got out of control and crashed head-on with another machine. Holmes, Mr .and Mrs. Harold Reeves of Columbiana and another unidentified person were hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Woodruff of Columbus, their two sons, 14 and 16 and a girl passenger in the car were injured Friday afternoon when their car overturned along Route 3 south of Loudonville.

Three persons were injured, two seriously, in a three-car accident on U. S. route 30N just east of Bucyrus. Most seriously hurt were Miss Mona Duke and her mother, Mrs. Nell Duke of Cleveland. They are in Bucyrus City hospital.

Injured in the same crash was George F. Fagan of Oak Park, Ill., driver of another car. Two other persons, riding in a third car, escaped injury when their automobile rammed the Duke car.

The nation's only fireworks fatality was a four-year-old boy who was killed when an aerial bomb slithered into a crowd of spectators at a fireworks display in Kansas City.

Fourteen of Ohio's fatalities were blamed on traffic, four persons were drowned, and three were shot to death. Among the victims were Charles Newberger, 6, Cleveland, shot accidentally as he played with a friend near his home; Ralph Fledderjohn, 19, Cincinnati, killed when he fell from a roller coaster at LeSourdsville park near Middletown.

shaking demonstration of heavy explosives and a myriad confusion of colorful super-roman candles and elaborate pinwheels that were visible in the sky for miles around.

Not a few of the spectators at the grounds must have suffered from aching necks before the show was completed, but they were unanimous in their dicision that the spectacle was well worth the neck stretching.

Ed Wyllie, president of the association, said that he thought the entire program from the opening event early in the afternoon to the closing display of fireworks was the most successful show that the group had ever put on.

Highlight of the evening's performance was a pageant called "Parade of the Nation, Through Television" in which great historical moments in the nation's development were depicted in tableaux form.

Approximately 40 children from various playground groups took part in the pageant directed by Don Cram, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. He was assisted by David Francis and Lawrence Millar and the Musicians association band.

Episodes such as Columbus discovery of America, the signing of the declaration of independence, Lincoln's Gettysburg address and aspects of the New Deal were presented by the youngsters, in costume, accompanied by a narrator who explained the significance of the events portrayed.

Interesting aspect of the afternoon's festivities was the awarding of a boy's and girl's bicycle to youngsters who had registered for participation in the supervised recreation program at the various parks.

Greta Adams, rear 1182 West Fourth street, and Robert Wyllie, 602 Johns avenue, won the bicycles.

A playground revue the first event on the day's program, was interrupted at 4 p. m. so that the audience could listen to President Roosevelt's address and take part in a nation-wide pledge of allegiance to the flag.

The revue consisted of demonstrations of playground activities in public parks.

Races for boys and girls were run during this part of the program. The 50-yard dash, for boys nine to 12 years of ago, was won by Robert Marsh; second, Al Sampsel, third, James Harper. The 50-yard dash for boys 12 to 14 was won by Joe Burton; James Milliron was second and Lawrence Harper, third.

In the 50-yard dash for girls, nine to 12, Marilyn Craig, won, Margaret Book, was second, and Evelyn Schultes, third. For girls 12 to 14, Virginia Swan, won, Elsie Baker was second, and Corrine Gerhart was third.

BLAST WRECKS SWIMMING POOL

Children's Home Play Spot Damaged by Explosion of Mysterious Origin.

the superintendent of the home, said she was awakened by a loud blast shortly after 1 a. m. but after examining the boiler room and finding nothing wrong there, she dismissed the noise as that coming from a firecracker. George R. Guiher, engineer at the home, found the pool nearly empty at 6 a. m. and discovered the damage caused by the explosion.

Guiher notified Downs who in turn summoned Mansfield police.

The force of the blast disturbed 50 feet of a 24-inch tile which runs below the pool to carry away surface water from a ravine nearby. The tile was built after the home abandoned use of water from the ravine and began using city water for the pool.

Police said that the tile, which was buried about a foot below the ground was lifted above it and that the section of the tile which ran along the bottom of the pool was lifted clear of the water.

So great was the force of the explosion that the tile lifted out of the water, fell back on top of the other tile. Although the blast itself did not damage the tile, the fall cracked three sections.

Guiher told police that the water in the pool must have drained out through the tile after the explosion. Only a few inches remained when he discovered the accident.

The home engineer said that he had no idea of how the blast may have occurred and discounted the police theory that natural gas developing from the marshy ground was responsible. Police said that it was not believed that dynamite had been the cause because the tile was not body damaged.

Mrs. Downs estimated that between 40 to 50 children bathed in the pool daily but said that the swimming was usually held in the afternoon.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—there'll be more cars on the highways than seems possible.

"Old Glory" is now 165 years old. "Long may it wave"—but never waver.

There's been an idea that Joe Louis hasn't kept up his training for recent bouts—but, according to allegations in his wife's divorce petition, this has been a part of his "home work."

Mansfield In National Limelight

SUCH favorable national publicity as Mansfield has recently attained through use of articles and pictures in Life and the American Magazine, calling attention to this city, has direct and indirect value which cannot be accurately estimated.

Life's recent prominent display of Mansfield high school's commencement activities is followed closely by the American Magazine's excellent handling of Safety Town, with deserved recognition of the part that has been played therein by Frend Boals, who had devoted much time and energy to development of this unique method of instructing young children in the rules and practices of safety.

While Safety Town, and Officer Boals, have previously been given considerable magazine and newspaper publicity, the illustrations and manner of presentation in the August issue of the American Magazine are such as to arouse interest among people of every city and town in the country, and to point the way for other communities to adopt measures for the better protection of their children.

It must be regarded as unfortunate that Mansfield cannot be similarly presented as a city that has found a way to make its motorists safety-conscious, so that it could also win commendation along this line—but that may come later, with better enforcement of traffic regulations and resultant improvement in driving habits.

Just now a couple of dozen presumably intelligent motorists are attempting to relieve a traffic tie-up by simultaneous honking of horns, with no policeman in sight to quell the bedlam or prevent double parking—but such condition is so common that some people think nothing can be done about it.

Get Ready for Next Heat Wave

EVEN a heat wave does not last forever, and the one that broiled the country through the last few days of June and the start of July was finally crowded out by a mass of cool air from the north and west. A grateful nation then rejoiced in normal or below normal temperatures, caught up on its sleep and decided that perhaps it could survive the summer, after all.

If people were wise in this matter—but they hardly ever are—they would prepare for the next heat wave now. There's bound to be another, for that's the way summer is in this so-called "temperate zone. They would see to it that deficiencies in warm-weather wardrobes were made up. They would hustle to get any special tasks that had to be done some time this summer out of the way while it's still possible to be strenuously active. They would figure out what mistakes they made in eating and drinking that added to their discomfort during the days of 90-degrees-and-up temperature.

And maybe they would also get a little extra rest in the cool period to store up resistance for the next hot one.

Objectionable Labor Policies

THERE are many echoes of approval to a recent speech made by Philip W. Kniskern of Philadelphia, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, about the labor situation in this country

It is startling, he says, "that free Americans must pay an initiation fee for the privilege of working for their country." We have long been accustomed to labor initiation fees, and it is natural that they should be continued in a time of great labor expansion. But compulsory unionization and the size of fees demanded have given the public, and workmen themselves, a strong sense of injustice. It seems especially objectionable in national defense work.

Mr. Kniskern also criticised the "astonishing reluctance of union leaders to remove those local leaders whose patriotism and honesty may well be questioned." Here is one of the most shocking of the labor grievances recently aired throughout the country. Labor itself should demand more vigorously that such abuses be swept away. They are neither useful, necessary, nor American.

Where Food Is Plentiful

EVEN an American who has counted 21 different kinds of cheese laid out, along with the coffee urns and all the other trimmings, in a Holland breakfast room, may be surprised at the amount of food consumed in the Dutch East Indies. The tropical climate there seems to make no difference. Clothing is light and loose, but the Dutch breakfast is as mighty as ever.

An American traveler at Batavia, even in these precarious times, tells with amazement of the fortresses of bread and cheese and cold meat and herring and eggs and so on, which will carry a man along until half past one or so, when it is time for a serious meal. Then there is no fooling. In comes a "rice table" suggesting an African safari, with 15 waiters carrying heaped dishes of six or seven kinds of meat, fish, chicken, fried bananas, stews, sauces, condiments, chutney, nuts, spiced eggs and so on. "It is a dietitian's nightmare," reports the horrified observer, "but the Dutch grow brawny on it. You seldom meet a neurotic Hollander."

Enslaving a Continent

WHAT Hitler and his converts call "the new European order" is of course DISorder and not new at all. It is as old as human theft and oppression It is a vast effort to make free Europe a slave continent, with the other nations and races all working for Nazi Germany.

This is far worse than Napoleon's lawlessness more than a century ago. Napoleon, though unprincipled, was sane, intelligent and in many ways constructive. Hitler and his weird crew are destroying European civilization, the parent of our own civilization.

Honest barbarism would be preferable to this incredible mess of hypocrisy and insanity.

There are, however, some people who would rather live on their knees than die on their feet.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of New York's night clubs.

NEW YORK—What bingo is to the movies, free champagne is to the night clubs.

The managers themselves will tell you: "We don't play bingo. We give away a few bottles of wine now and then, but it's just in fun."

Phooey.

They give it away because it helps trade. At least, they think it helps trade. Night club managers are not noted for their altruistic instincts. They are business men in a business that is one of the most hazardous of all gambles. When the trade falls off, they face trouble. The overhead keeps going.

So one of the things they do, calculated to make the customer want to come back, is cater to the old bingo theme—the idea of giving away something for nothing.

Mr. Sherman Billingsley, shrewd, astute owner of the Stork club, does better than champagne. He gives away $100 banknotes.

It works like this. Mr. Billingsley has several hundred balloons inflated, and into some of these he places his $100 bank notes. These balloons are suspended from the ceiling. At a given signal they begin to float down, and the scramble begins. To date there have been no broken bones, but the shrill cries of triumph from the lucky misses have often been heard as far as Triborough bridge.

The champagne gesture can be worked a hundred ways and it has been popular since the nadir of the depression. Usually it is awarded as a prize, perhaps for the best dancers.

There's a night club in Greenwich village that gives wine for lucky requests to the orchestra. Suppose there are 200 guests. Perhaps a number of guests will request a popular song. The seventh to ask for it is awarded the champagne.

In still another club the entertainers summon stooges from the audience. They engage the victims in some form of competition, make them appear ridiculous, and then assuage their feelings with gift bottles of vintage champagne.

It isn't a bad feature at all. It's something to talk about—and people do talk. But, what is more important, they often go back and take their friends.

That's the idea—To get 'em back.

It's legitimate—and it's fun.

But it's also bingo.

Checkers Holding Its Own.

An American manufacturer reports that, within a recent year, he turned out and sold no less than 20 million checkerboards. Evidently the venerable game of draughts, in competition with motion pictures, motoring, radio, football and baseball, is holding its own.

History should record that checkers afforded early settlers a convenient, inexpensive form of indoor relaxation, helped trader and trapper, snowbound in log shelters, to while away long hours; accompanied the Argonauts to California in '49, and subsequently aided the kerosene lamp in making brighter the evenings in many a "little old sod shanty on the plains."

As much as sugar, salt or flour, the game was stock equipment of the backwoods store. In the frontier inn, it made less tedious the wait of many a traveler. Where pupils were forbidden by parents to play until lessons were finished, it aided education by providing an incentive to finish "homework." And present-day students have not forgotten the game, as many a maturer person has learned while he watched his youthful opponent clean up the board.—Christian Science Monitor.

Vital War Materials Wasted

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Precious war materials are being utterly wasted as a result of war department red tape. For instance the case cited by Representative Albert J. Engel, of Michigan, with respect to termite shields. Mr. Engel complains because of the waste of money. In the case he cited the cost for termite shields was $15,000.

What Mr. Engel did not mention in his speech was that these termite shields are made of copper. One wonders if they would still be used in communities where termites have not appeared for hundreds of years if it was necessary to use aluminum!

BUT copper is scarce enough, will be rationed, and people will be urged to avoid unnecessary use of it, just as they are now being compelled in the southeast to conserve electric current, and are being urged all through the east not to waste gasoline.

"I also pointed out the fact," said Mr. Engel, "that one wooden building had stood on the reservation where these termite shields were used which had been erected in the year 1690 and had stood there for 250 years and no termite had ever attacked it. I also called attention to the fact that the termite shields were placed on the building despite the fact that the camp construction quartermaster had been to Washington and made a recommendation against their being used.

"That the day after this recommendation was made the army instructed him to put them on any way. It was easier to affirm the order even though it was costing the taxpayers $15,000 than it was to cut the red tape which had to be cut to change the order. Under the system used in the construction of army cantonments under the cost-plus-fixed-fee system the contractor purchases a great deal of the material such as lumber, equipment, etc., and is then reimbursed by the army. I have before me a statement showing the amount of red tape that must be unwound before the contractor can be reimbursed for such invoice payment.

"When the officers of the quartermaster general's department and the army budget officials were before our war department subcommittee of the appropriations committee I questioned them on this procedure and they stated that this statement set forth the things that must be done before a contractor could be reimbursed for invoice payment. This statement covers nearly three regular letterhead size pages, single spaced. It takes 46 paragraphs and sub-paragraphs to set forth the things that must be done before such reimbursement can be made. I am placing this statement in the record. You will find that it requires the filing of 43 papers before a check is issued and 11 papers after the check is issued, or a total of 54 papers including originals, duplicates, triplicates, quadruplicates, quintuplets and other 'uplicates' until, in paragraph five, 12 copies of a purchase order were distributed.

"It also included the filling out of five different government forms. Paragraph three provides that one of these forms is made out in white, yellow, pink and blue colors. It does not state whether any baby ribbon is used.

"All this is being done under the cost-plus-fixed-fee system of army construction. Speaking about delays, I am wondering just how much of the delay in army construction was caused by the winding and unwinding of this type of red tape."

Looks as though Mr. Engle has something there.

WAR NEWS all day long. Radios blaring, newspapers issuing extras. Terrors and taxes bearing down upon you. Which is as it should be. You've got to know your current world and meet its tests as they come. You've got to be interested and alert to our defense program.

BUT YOU'VE GOT TO BE CAREFUL, TOO, THAT IT DOESN'T RUIN YOUR MORALE . . . GET YOUR COAT COMPLETELY.

You can, if you let yourself go, become as trapped as any Lybian soldier in this desert of despair . . . you can become as regimented as any Nazi or Fascist.

THE ONLY PREVENTIVE IS THIS: DO YOUR DUTY BUT KEEP YOURSELF A LITTLE APART. HOLD YOURSELF ABOVE THE PANIC.

BUT HOW?

By realizing that this panic is not your real life nor your natural environment. The human race has always staged panics . . . promoted horrors. But those who were mature always managed to protect their private lives even while they were performing their public duties.

No, I'm not trying to be a Pollyanna nor am I trying to prove that there's a silver lining to every war cloud. I see nothing beautiful or noble about war. But I do see much beauty and nobility in human progress . . . and I do believe we can preserve it in spite of Hell, High Water and Hitler.

The greatest menace to America isn't Hitler or all his frothing pups. The greatest menace is our own hysteria. If we lose our heads now, we're sunk—as thoroughly as though 100 Stuka Divers had been on the job. And if we keep thinking about war 100 per cent of the time, we will be sunk.

The vital thing is to remember that we have a life entirely outside of war life . . . a life of normal joys and jobs . . . a life that must go on if America is to continue.

That life has not been wiped out by this war emergency. It still continues . . . it still calls to us. And we must keep our heads cool enough to answer.

But we can only keep ourselves cool if we determine to stand above this nightmare . . . hold our minds and hearts a little apart.

You've done it before, in your private emergencies. You've seen your personal world attacked, perhaps seen it crumble. Yet you kept your sense of values. You knew that such attacks weren't unprecedented. You knew you must go on, even if you were hurt and frightened. So you went on. It wasn't easy. You wanted to cry and cuss and kick something. But you did'nt. You held on to yourself. You tried to take the long view of things. And gradually your control and common sense came back. And you managed to pull out of the hole.

You've done that, time and again, in your personal life . . . in your business life. And you must do it in this war crisis or you'll be a Goner—and America with you. You must contrive to have a quiet place, in your heart and head, where War Thoughts do not come. You must widen your life until it spreads beyond all human fear and fever and touches the sources of eternal peace.

Do your duty by your country.

BUT FOR PETE'S SAKE ALSO DO YOUR DUTY TO YOURSELF.

ARM YOUR COUNTRY AGAINST WAR BY MOBILIZING YOUR OWN SPIRIT AGAINST FEAR.

New interests—that's the answer. Get a hobby. Plant a garden. Make a friend. Weave a basket. Fall in love! These are the lasting and the fundamental things. War is only a periodic epidemic.

LIFE MUST GO ON. NOTHING CAN STOP IT. DARE TO GO WITH IT! AND KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON!

Building An Army Is Large Task, Weeding Out Misfits Takes Time

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEGENDARY Jason sowed dragon's teeth, and a host of soldiers sprang out of the ground. No such course is open to Uncle Sam, trying to raise an army almost overnight. With Sam, it is a complicated affair, groping and experimental at first.

As must have been expected, the building of an army uncovered many a misfit in the ranks of officers long uncalled-on in cozy peace-time berths to show their fibre. At the close of the vast Tennessee war games, Lt. Gen Ben Lear concluded: "Our chain of command is weak—weak to the extent that if this condition is allowed to continue, the chain, at its weak links, will break whenever an emergency imposes a heavy load."

Almost at the same time, Acting Secretary of War Patterson asked congress for power to weed out unfit officers and "vitalize" the army's leadership. The weeding out would affect 89,500 regular, national guard and reserve officers.

The war department put into effect a new system of giving promising officers temporary promotion over the heads of those normally in line because of seniority. The plan was set going with 286 promotions.

Things are beginning to shape up meanwhile for fellows of draft age who are wondering whether they should figure on being called—and who had been wondering whether they might find themselves in the army for longer than the year now on the books.

General Hershey, assistant selective service director, has ordered all men over 28 deferred, and Selective Service headquarters has instructed local boards to defer other men who make "any substantial contribution to dependents."

President Roosevelt's secretary told reporters the war department expected to induct new men "as the training period of men inducted during the current year expires," interpreting this to mean that draftees would go home at the end of a year.

Army experts believe a good percentage of the some 750,000 new 21-year-olds who have just registered will be in the army pretty soon. They are in better physical condition generally and few have dependents.

Tools of Defense.

Even as Uncle Sam can't raise an army by planting dragon's molars, he can't equip it just by waving a wand. It calls for an almost fantastic transformation of a multi-billion dollar industrial system. That this too is bound to be cursed with false starts and blunders is indicated in several recent stories from Washington.

1 President Roosevelt said he was only partly satisfied with the way the defense program was rolling. Particularly, he said, the country is 'way behind in producing ammunition.

2 A defense official disclosed that aircraft production is "in the doldrums" and likely to stay there through July and August, mostly because of a shortage of metals.

3 The house military committee turned in a sharp report asserting that a series of major "failures" and "delays" had caused a serious lack of strategic materials.

4 Security Administrator McNutt reported a serious shortage of shipbuilding, aircraft and machine shop workers.

On the action side of the account, President Roosevelt has signed a $10,384,821,624 army appropriation bill—the biggest single appropriation ever enacted. The act underscores airplanes, carrying enough to buy and equip 12,865 of them. It provides funds for an army of 1,518,799 for this fiscal year.

Plane manufacturers, with the successful test flight of the four-motored B-19 army bomber before their eyes, have put their draughtsmen to work on ideas for more air dreadnaughts and announced a plan for pooling productive resources.

Quotes

Senator Taft (R-Ohio): "Democracy threatens to become a fetish without real meaning. It has almost come to mean any nation on our side. . . . It has almost been brought to include Russia."

National Committee of U. S. Communist Party: "The involement of the Soviet Union in the war has changed the character of the war and creates the opportunity for the people of the United States and for all peoples to unite and assure the complete and final annihilation of Hitler and Hitlerism."

Abroad

Hitler's "Holy War."

Those who lacked the patience to read Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf" all the way through, and sneaked a look at the back pages, found this passage:

"We must never forget that the regents of present-day Russia are common bloodstained criminals. Nor must we forget that these rulers belong to a nation which . . . believes itself called upon to impose its bloody oppression on the whole world."

For years Nazi Germany acted on that theory. Then, for a brief spell after signing of the Russo-German non-aggression treaty, the two nations were buddies.

Now, with German armies driving into Russia for the second week, Nazi theorists have gone back to "Mein Kampf."

Incident.

After four years, Japan's invasion of China (referred to in Tokyo as the "China incident") has netted the army of the rising sun a foothold on the coast but only narrow belts of authority along railroads, rivers and highways in the interior.

Japan felt fairly secure from Russia in view of its non-aggression treaty with Moscow, but now that Russia and Germany are at war she finds her tie-up with the Rome-Berlin Axis embarrassing—especially so with British forces in Malaya and U. S. forces in the Philippines on a steady increase.

Inscription Rock, on the southern shore of Kelly's Island in Lake Erie, is by far the most extensively sculptured of any in the antiquarian period ever found in America.

The inscriptions were first publicized about 1833-4, soon after purchase of the island by Datus and Irad Kelley. In 1851, drawings of these inscriptions were made by Colonel Eastman of the U. S. army. Copies were submitted to Shingvauk, an Indian learned in pictography of his race. His interpretations were given in Schoolcraft's "American Antiquities." The rock has been visited by thousands of persons, and has become much worn, but the inscriptions are still visible. The rock is 32 feet at its greatest length, 21 feet at its greatest breadth, and rises 11 feet above the water.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Bamboozle."

Although "bamboozle" has all the aspects of modern American slang, it is at least two and a half centuries old and hails from England.

Alleged to be of Gypsy origin (though this is not established), "bamboozle" made its first recorded appearance about 1700, and, as is the case with similar cant words, must have been in circulation for some time before.

In Number 230 of the Tatler, published in 1710, allusion is made "to certain words invented by some pretty fellows, such as bamboozle . . . some of which are now struggling for the vogue."

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the word bam to hoax is said by some to be an abbreviation of "bamboozle"—or the source of its first syllable—leaving boozle unexplained!

Our prosperity is held to be "illusory;" but before we make up our minds on it definitely we should like to see more of the prosperity.—Kansas City Star.

TODAY IN HISTORY

JULY 5—The first admiral of the United States navy, Admiral David Glasgow, was born at Campbell's Station, Tenn., on July 5, 1801. He served as chief officer of the federal navy during the Civil war.

At Home

Watchdogs.

In wartime there is a sharper look-out for spies and possible traitors, but there also are those who try to apply the brakes of cool-headedness against runaway patriotic zeal.

One such is Governor Edison of New Jersey. As 32 persons were arrested as spies (one of them had access to the Norden bomb-sight for several years), and as the government ordered proceedings against leaders of the Socialist Workers party in St. Paul, Edison vetoed a state legislature bill aimed at subversive activity.

He explained that he was "sympathetic with the purpose of the bill" but feared it as a possible threat to the "civil rights of true American citizens."

Happy New Year.

You may not have known it, but a year has just ended—the U. S. treasury's fiscal year, which runs from July 1 to July 1. And what a year it was for Secretary Morgenthau's boys! It saw one of the biggest money turnovers in the nation's history.

Spending totaled $12,700,000,000, about half of it for defense, but "you ain't seen nothin' yet." Officials estimate that in this fiscal year we will spend more than 15 billion for defense alone, with total spending around 22 billion. These figures don't include amounts spent by governmental corporations such as RFC.

Defense and Just Folks.

In the switch-over from peacetime to virtual wartime economy, there are two big things the government must do that affect the man with the hoe, the toolbox or the typewriter.

1. It must deprive him of some commodities because defense industry needs them.

2. It must protect him from high prices caused by shortage.

Charles F. Palmer, co-ordinator of defense housing, has warned the little man that he may run up against priorities if he's planning to build a house, and perhaps he won't be able to get a new car soon because the government wants auto production cut 20 per cent. Furthermore, congress is considering a bill that would tax every private car $5 and put some kind of a tax on almost everything else from train fares to soda pop.

An emergency appeal to people in the southeastern states to cut down on use of electricity so aluminum plants could get power coincided with reports a "coal czar" could be expected.

As for governmental job No. 2 —Price Administrator Henderson says a "continued increase in the price index" can be expected but that he has "the one tool to keep prices in line"—price ceilings.

People

Lonely Hearts.

The eastern half of the United States apparently is thickly sprinkled with women interested in travel and matrimony.

After releasing a report that U. S. possessions and territories have many more men than women, the census bureau was deluged with queries from eastern states asking for names and addresses of likely prospects. Most interest was displayed in Guam, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the Canal Zone.

Life Belts After 40?

At 40, Dr. William J. Kerr told the Pacific Northwest Medical association, most men's weight settles in a "corporation front," which tends to pull down on their diaphragms and hinder circulation.

This, said Dr. Kerr, causes angina pectoris, a dread heart ailment. He recommended men over 40 wear corsets.

GALION STAGES GIANT FOURTH CELEBRATION

4,000 Crowd Heise Park to Witness Fireworks Display.

GALION — A bombardment in the sky over Heise park provided by a gigantic display of fireworks Friday night climaxed the Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Galion.

Slightly cool weather provided an ideal atmosphere and brought thousands to the park, many from surrounding towns and communities.

Crowds were small during the morning hours, when attendance was confined mostly to those interested in the various tournaments, contests and games that began at 9 a. m. and continued through the afternoon.

Nearly 4,000 were served at an ox roast during the supper hour at 5 p. m.

This was the beginning of the evening's program which included a band concert at 7 p. m. by the Eagles' band under the direction of Harrie Lee Bland. Then came the awarding of merchandise prizes, tickets for which had been sold in order to finance the celebration.

The prizes were awarded as follows. refrigerator, Herman Eichhorn; combination radio and phonograph, Kenneth Tuttle; electric kitchen-aid, F. C. Therman.

At 8:30 o'clock the Mansfield Braves and the Bellevue Boosters went to bat in a seven-inning game that ended with the Braves winning by a score of 7 to 1.

A display of $600 worth of fireworks at 10:30 p. m. climaxed the day's events. For nearly an hour, bombs burst into the air as the fireworks were shown to the thousands that were present.

Starting at 9 a. m., horseshoe preliminaries were held, the tournament coming to a close in the afternoon with Ernest Pry winning first place. Four men who tied for second place were Frank Ulmer, Garth Roop, C. Harsh and Carl Pry.

Another tournament completed during the day was the tennis event, Orville Sloane winning over Bob Schupp, 6-3, and 6-0. The tournament had reached the semi-finals earlier in the week, and these were played off during the day, Robert Schupp winning from Val Heiby; and Sloane defeating Cy Herr.

At 9:30 a. m. two picked all-star hardball teams of the Heise Park playground battled in a game that was won by Wolfelt's team over Plummer's. The final score was 10 to 9.

Swimming and diving events took place at 3 p. m. First places in the various aqua contests were won by Clinton McFarland, James Angell, Bill Balthaser and Boyd Gifford. Members of the winning relay team were Howard Spiggle, Henry Stough and Clint McFarland. Robert Via of Galion who held the Sandusky city diving championship for several years, presented eight exhibition dives.

A model airplane contest was held at 1:30 p. m., with many out-of-town participants. Prizes were awarded for the best average time, each contestant being allowed three official flights. The planes were rubber powered. Winners were Ned Saltz, Tom Babcock, Ted Roads, Fred Rech, all of Marion, and Sanford Roach of Galion.

THEATERS

Sea Tale

Eugene O'Neill's famous "The Long Voyage Home," opening at the Park Sunday, is a lusty sea tale of stout-hearted men whose heroism and bravery remains unsung. Most of the action takes place aboard a British tramp steamer en route to England after a long voyage with calls in Caribbean and American ports. A hurricane of the first order adds its thrills to the picture which features John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell and Ian Hunter. Gene Autry's "The Singing Hill," with Smiley Burnett, is the second feature.

Comedy Drama

Girl entertainers in search of a job, racketeers trying to "muscle in" on legitimate business, and a band that decides to help the girls along are the characters in "San Antonio Rose," comedy with music, showing at the Majestic. Featuring the Merry Macs, Eve Arden, Lon Chaney, jr., and Shemp Howard, the picture also has Jane Frazee who has appeared in Billy Rose's Casa Manana. Bill Elliott as a fearless gunfighter who smashes a band of desert renegades brings Wild Bill Hickok to the screen again in "Hands Across the Rockies," the second picture.

Comedy with Music

When a radio crooner, tired of fanfare, decides to secretly enlist in the navy he gets plenty of publicity, especially if a newspaper woman is on his trail as Dick Powell learns in the current Ohio attraction, "In the Navy," co-starring Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. She follows him to Honolulu where Hawaiian rhythm vies with boogie woogie tempo and the Andrews Sisters make merry with Abbott and Costello, the same as they did in "Buck Privates." Claire Dodd plays the newspaper woman. Two of the largest indoor sets used in pictures were constructed for this feature, one a battleship made from navy blue prints, and the other a section surrounding the Royal Palms hotel in Honolulu.

Laugh Fest

The pretty department store demonstrator of a vegetable cutter inherits a cool million in the current attraction at the Madison, "Million Dollar Baby," and from then on, until she gets rid of the money, the picture is a continuous laugh. Taught how to conduct herself like a debutante she arouses the enmity of her friends to the point where she has to relieve herself of her fortune to keep them. Priscilla Lane plays the title role and Jeffrey Lynn, Ronald Reagan and May Robson are in the cast. "Hit the Road" is the companion feature.

Boys Town Drama.

Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney are co-starred again in "Men of Boys Town," opening Sunday at the Ritz. The story concerns the characters introduced in the first "Boys Town" picture and presents Mickey as the adopted son of a wealthy family who attempts to aid a runaway from the home. Mary Nash and Darryl Hickman are in the cast. Hard-riding and quick shooting Roy Rogers is starred in the second picture, "Sheriff of Tombstone."

destroyed over northern France and three British fighters and one bomber are missing, the ministry said.

Bremen was the principal objective of daylight raids yesterday morning, following night raids on various points of the industrial Ruhr.

The German air force attacked shipping in the English channel in the moonlight late last night. Flashes from exploding bombs and the burst of anti-aircraft shells were visible from the shore at Folkestone.

Shortly after the attack, two long-range German guns at Cap Cris Nez fired a half-dozen shells, apparently in an effort to divert the ships.

Eden Predicts New Hitler Peace Offer

LEEDS, England —(AP)— Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden predicted a new German peace offer and rejected it in advance today, reiterating Britain's determination to destroy Adolf Hitler and "all he stands for."

"We anticipate that Hitler, at a moment he considers opportune during his campaign in Russia, will seek to present himself in another of his occasional theatrical roles," Eden told an outdoor meeting here.

"This time, his make-up will be that of the man of peace. Internal conditions in Germany may make this false posturing necessary for him for a spell. He will offer smooth assurances and specious promises in the hope of bagging some foolish birds.

"It might, therefore, be useful that I should now declare the position of his majesty's government in respect to any peace offer by Hitler.

"The head of the German state stands condemned by his own deeds as a man of perjured faith. We are not in any circumstances prepared to negotiate with him at any time on any subject.

"We shall intensify our war effort until he and all he stands for utterly destroyed.

"We are all out to beat Hitler. We shall not let go until we have done the job, and we welcome all those who will give us a hand to finish it."

gency to justify the use of American soldiers anywhere beyond the United States and its possessions."

"My recollection is," the Oregon senator continued, "that there was a clear understanding that the selectees would not be kept in service more than a year."

Opponents of the administration generally expressed confidence that the plan would be defeated, and Senator Adams (D., Col.) declared that "in substance, a vote to give that authority would be a vote for authority to make war."

The Marshall recommendations probably will be discussed by President Roosevelt and legislative leaders at a White House conference Monday, congressional authorities reported. Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate, who has been recuperating from an illness, was expected to return in time for the conference.

Roosevelt Speeds Aid, Gives Warning

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt returned today to speed the tempo of all-out material aid to Great Britain and her Allies under circumstances which provoked his solemn warning that Americans must pledge their lives, if necessary, to the defensive effort.

No other July Fourth since World war days has been observed by the nation with such grim contemplation of world affairs as that of yesterday.

Keynoting the unprecedented demonstration of national unity in commemoration of the 165th anniversary of American independence, Mr. Roosevelt warned that this country could not expect to remain an island of freedom in a world otherwise dominated by a "dictator combination." He spoke from his Hyde Park, N. Y., home during a 10-minute "unity" program which reached into every corner of the land and was broadcast throughout the world by short-wave radio.

Pleading for an "end to backbiting and to the sabotage which runs far deeper than the blowing up of munitions plants," Mr. Roosevelt asked the people in his brief message for "loyalty and unity."

"It is indeed a fallacy, based on no logic at all, for any American to suggest that the rule of force can defeat human freedom in all the other parts of the world and permit it to survive in the United States alone," he said.

"But it has been that childlike fantasy itself — that misdirected faith—which has led nation after nation to go about their peaceful tasks, relying on the thought, and even the promise, that they and their lives and their government would be allowed to live when the juggernaut of force came their way.

"I tell the American people solemnly that the United States will never survive as a happy and fertile oasis of liberty surrounded by a cruel desert of dictatorship.

"And so it is that when we repeat the great pledge to our country and to our flag, it must be our deep conviction that we pledge as well our work, our will and, if it be necessary, our very lives."

Mr. Roosevelt has been conducting national business from his home in Hyde Park for just over a week. His return today coincides with development of fundamental problems affecting both defense and foreign relations.

Most notable include the newly-undertaken program to aid the Soviet Union against Germany; a decision whether Mr. Roosevelt shall accept urgent recommendations of his war and navy secretaries regarding national defense and aid to Britain, and the important matter of our relations with Japan.

Just around the corner from the immediate question of Japanese-American relations is the problem of what would be the effect upon our Russian-aid program if Tokyo should aggressively aid the Axis against the Soviet Union.

Vladivostok, the great Soviet Union port on the Sea of Japan, can be reached only through seaways which Tokyo regards much as the United States regards the Caribbean sea. There are indications here of hope and perhaps even confidence that Japan will not bring active warfare to the Pacific. But so far the policy adopted by Japan this week has been kept secret and American officials presumably do not know whether Tokyo intends to move on the Soviet Union or to keep hands off.

Delivery of American goods to Vladivostok would be difficult, hazardous and perhaps impossible if Japan undertook to close the Sea of Japan to shipments consigned for Siberian ports.

GRACE LADD BECOMES BRIDE OF MR. WILLSEY

Park Avenue Baptist Church Scene of Quiet Wedding of Mansfield Couple on Thursday Evening at 8:30 O'Clock.

IN A SERVICE attended only by the immediate families Miss Grace W. Ladd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Ladd, 593 Grant street, and Harvie C Willsey, son of Mr. and Mrs C. L. Willsey, 111 Brinkerhoff avenue, were united in marriage Thursday evening at 8:30. The single ring ceremony was solemnized before the altar of the Park Avenue Baptist church by Rev. A. L. Linder.

Palms, ferns and two seven branch candelabra formed a pretty background for the quiet service. Nuptial music was played by Lawrence S. Frank, organist, whose selections were "I Love You Truly," "For You," "Because" and "Intermezzo." During the ceremony the strains of "Liebestraum" were softly heard. The traditional wedding marches were also played by Mr. Frank.

In a dainty white crepe frock of street length the bride approached the altar. Her dress was fashioned with bracelet length sleeves, a v-neckline with small collar, princess style bodice with full skirt and large covered buttons trimmed the front of the bodice. With her wedding frock she wore a large white felt hat, with sweetheart-shaped rim and white accessories. Her corsage was of light lavender orchids, tied with orchid ribbons.

Mrs. Earl Brandenburg was matron of honor, wearing a white sharkskin frock, also street length. Completing her ensemble was a large brim white braid hat with navy blue trim. Her accessories were all in white and she wore a corsage of yellow roses and blue delphinium.

Earl Brandenourg served Mr. Willsey as best man.

Mrs. Ladd appeared in a lovely rose crepe street length frock with white accessories. Mrs. Willsey wore a white crepe dress with aqua hat. Both mothers wore corsages of pink roses tied with pink satin ribbons.

Immediately following the nuptials Mr. and Mrs. Willsey left for a trip through Michigan.

Mrs. Willsey is a graduate of Mansfield high school and both young people are employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

Upon their return from their honeymoon they will reside at 111 Brinkerhoff avenue. Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Carter of Springfield, Mass., were out-of-town guests in attendance. Mrs. Carter is a sister of the bridegroom.

HOSTESS NAMED.

Members of the Welfare club will hold their annual picnic Wednesday at the home of Mrs. A. T. Sneeringer, Ashland road. A covered dish dinner will be served at noon.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, July 6.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of possible opportunities for rising to heights of ambition and aspirations, against certain deceptive or strange appearances, by strict adherence to principle and high purpose. This is likely to attract the substantial support of those in high places, whereas swerving from worthy and time-honored systems and methods to indulge in erratic, eccentric or unorthodox tactics may forfeit this collaboration. Cultivate this friendliness but shun indulgence and extravagances.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of desired success, with progress, advancement, recognition and productiveness, if they will persist in adhering to high principle and worthy purpose, with prudent methods of promoting them rather than eccentric, strange or irregular tactics. The latter is bound to discourage the friendship and approval of those in power and with capital, as would any form of excess, extravagance, over-enthusiasm or inflated ideas or ideals. Keep moderate, balanced and conservative and luck will follow.

A child born on this day should possess many characteristics for success and happiness but may be easy-going and good-natured to excess, being easily duped.

For Monday, July 7.

Monday's astrological forecast is for difficult and dangerous conditions with jealousy, antagonism and strife, both open and undercover. It will be a real task to compose this belligerency, as the native tendency is to fight fire with fire. The impulse is to tempest, fury, rash and violent behavior, with every trend toward indulgence rather than restraint. Tension may heighten the confusion and aggravation, undermining judgment and nervous vitality.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for stern individual restraint, temperance with sound modes of conduct to overcome very destructive forces. Enmity may be open as well as subtle and seductive, working with deadly craft, and undermining the health, integrity and high purpose. Shun haste and impetuosity.

A child born on this day should be wayward, impulsive and passionate, as well as having hidden urges to peculiar behavior, and should have early supervision and guidance toward right ideas and principles. With this it should have fine creative expression, practical and artistic.

Summer Formal Frock

Peasanty and pretty is this flower-sprigged cotton frock for summer evenings. Bands of embroidered batiste form the square neckline and tight cuffs, and a band of batiste is set on at the top of the shirred flounce.

Don't Confess Past Is Advice Of Dr. Groves

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. — If you're married and have a "past" don't confess it to your mate, advises Dr. Ernest R. Groves.

"I don't believe much in confessions," he says.

But Dr. Groves, the man who established America's first college courses in marriage, is not recommending that married people, or unmarried ones, either, go out and creat pasts.

He means that confession often makes mountains' out of molehills, often opens up sore subjects, often, indeed, defeats its own end by starting trains of thought which lead anywhere but in the direction intended.

And more than 40 years of thought have not revealed any startling new causes of marital difficulty. "The trouble is mostly sex," Dr. Groves avers. "Only about 25 per cent of the troubles that come to me are based on other factors.

"As far as I can see," says he, "there are no marked ups and downs in marriage difficulties which correspond to such things as world affairs. The depression did not increase, or decrease, the number of cases that came to me."

Marital problems usually are more acute among younger couples, he finds. "Between 20 and 28, I should say, the problems are largely preventional and usually acute. But it is also true that this is somewhat relieved because I get a great many, nowadays, before marriage, so that I can chart the shoals in advance. And the younger couples are as a rule less embarrassed by their situation and my questions.

"The next decade, I find, contains more chronic problems — things that have struck in pretty deeply, perhaps been suppressed for years. And after that I find the period of what I might call 'the loosening of domestic ties.'

"This is the time of stenographer and ice man trouble, when men and women do foolish and often futile things. It would help everybody if we all knew that after 40 there is very often an awakening of fertilities, as well as the presumed tendency toward the normal."

Dr. Groves believes that a lot of marital difficulty comes because women "play sex badly," as he says.

Gay Prints Used For Spring and Summer Frocks

NEW YORK—(INS)—Prescribed for spirit lifting are the gay, fresh prints of the season. They're as excellent as a new spring hat for making spring official.

Small neat prints for the conservative, large bold designs for the daring — you'll find them all this summer and you'll welcome them as smart additions to your wardrobe.

If it's a neat print you desire, choose a snowflake - spotted gray crepe. The snowflakes, slightly irregular, are spotted at two - inch intervals on the dress. The dress has a matching bolero, the bolero trimmed with notched revers of white pique and white cuffs. The dress itself has a slim, V-necked line in the bodice. The skirt is gathered at the hips and falls in soft fullness down the front.

Forest green is the background for a Persian-printed crepe scrolled with orange that's made into a simple, shirtwaist style dress trimmed with a soft sash.

Another green print — olive in shade, is printed with small red and white stars. An olive green wool crepe is combined with the dress, lined in the print.

A navy blue crepe afternoon dress is splashed with American Beauty roses, both big and small and widely spaced. It's made with a V-neck, elbow sleeves, and peg-top pockets on the skirt.

Roses for Prints.

Roses, prize - winning ones, are the inspiration for a whole series of prints in lawn and spun rayon.

Nine prize roses grown by the country's largest rose nursery, were used by artists to create the rose parade prints. They include stylized all-over patterns, widely spaced, exotic effects and natural treatments, and all bear the name of the rose they were modeled after.

The dresses made of these prints are fashioned smartly and are highlighted by matching or contrasting jackets, unusual pockets, pleated or flared skirts, flattering sleeves or pleated jabots.

One of the most popular designs in the group is the Rose Bampton, adapted from the rose named after the opera star. The white rose is shown on a background of woods green, warm brown, copen, shell pink and sherry. The dress itself is one piece, topped by a matching sleeveless jacket in the long length.

A single florabunda rose, the Betty Prior, makes a delicate print for a pin-tucked dress of lawn. A two tone belt is used for an accent note.

The dresses are not only reminiscent of a full blown rose garden, but each is accompanied by a tag which entitles the purchaser to a rose bush ready for planting.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Patricia Jane Bookmyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bookmyer, 535 McPherson street, celebrated her ninth birthday Friday with a party for a group of her friends. Following an afternoon which was spent socially the guests were served luncheon. The table was decorated with patriotic appointments. The guests presented the honoree with many gifts. In attendance were Dick Kutchall, Phyllis Beeler, Gloria Beeler, Marlene, Bob and Dick Knapp and Shirley Heilman.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I AM very glad to yield to your ultimatum," I told Mary smiling. And indeed, when I had made a hasty estimate of the interval elapsing before my father's arrival, I realized that I would have ample time both for an appearance at the party, and for the interviews I had promised, first to Nancy Carew and now to Mary.

This resting time, also, would enable me to answer my father's questions concerning the sleep I had had, with some semblance of truth. At least I would have gone to bed, and I could evade the question of how long I had slept.

"It's a good thing you're glad," she said, "although it wouldn't make any difference whether you were glad or sorry. It's time somebody bossed you around. Now, in you go, and don't you dare to move until I call you. I'll do that in ten minutes; you can depend on that. I understand what you've got on hand."

She tucked me up again, opened the window opening on the balcony where so recently the marauder had lurked, and went swiftly into the living room.

Madge Gets a Brief Rest.

I made no attempt at sleeping. It wasn't worth while for the little time afforded me. But I tried to relax and put out of my mind not only Marion's danger, but the problem presented by the interview which Nancy Carew had asked, and by the confidence which Mary so patiently wished to give me.

She was the third woman who had urgently wished to talk to me. I had seen Olga, and learned that she was deeply worried over the attentions of Stephen Redfield, Mary's leading man in my play, to the beautiful young "Veritzen star," daughter-in-law of the famous theatrical producer.

Mary and Noel a Problem.

That Olga was even more concerned over Mary's acceptance of those attentions, and the reactions of Noel. Mary's jealous and temperamental young husband, to his wife's apparent encouragement of Redfield, had been evident. Also, her reference to the "wild, jealous rages" which were Noel Veritzen's heritage from his famous father, Philip Veritzen, and his "bar-sinister" ancestry of the royal house of Transvania, had made me wonder if Noel perhaps had given way to one of those rages.

Not that Mary ever would tell me that. As long as she remained Noel's wife, she would not criticise him nor allow anyone else to speak disparagingly of him. But I could not rid myself of the conviction that both the impending interview with Nancy Carew, who once had warned me that Steve Redfield was "bad medicine," and the promised talk with Mary herself, would deal with the same subject—the handsome and talented actor, Stephen Redfield, who was Mary's leading man.

It was easier to plan to banish all thought of my problem than to accomplish it, but after a minute or two I succeeded in making my mind a comparative blank, and really rested in brain and body until Mary came to call me, promptly at the end of ten minutes, as she had promised me.

"Time's up," she said cheerily, coming into the room, and with patent pride carrying a cup with steam rising from it.

"What in the world?" I asked curiously. Then, as she set it down beside me, I exclaimed in delight.

"Tea, at this unearthly hour!" I said. "How marvelous! I never needed a cup more. But where did you get it?"

"It took a bit of managing," she answered, with pardonable smugness, "but I thought you'd need a cup of tea. Of course, room service is closed, and over at the party they're only serving fruit punch with the eats—they'll have coffee and things at daylight before they go home.

A Friendly Cup of Tea.

"But I've a tiny grill and an equally small refrigerator tucked away in my closet—I have a pull you know as the daughter-in-law of the owner—and I wrote a note to Olga and sent it over by this guard Dad has stationed outside.

"It took some time to convince him that I wasn't planning to blow up the hotel with a time bomb, but he finally got it through his head, took over the note, and Olga promptly sent back a tin of boiling water and some tea leaves in a heated pot. I think you'll find it to your liking."

"Your remembrance is eminently correct," I told her, smiling as I took the cup from her. "This is delicious," I added, a second later, when I had tasted the beverage. "Thank you a thousand times. Now I am fortified for anything."

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXXII

"Oh, then that was the reason . . ." Cherry began, and stopped as light broke. Fran's inclusion of herself when she gave the judge accounts of trips Cherry never had taken; long days when she had to "see people" in Palo Alto or Menlo Park; her swift, confidential talk aside with Rousseau in the hall on the night when they had come in drenched from their delayed return from Kelly's place at Sausalito and finally that talk with some man on the telephone on the tragic last night of all when Cherry had heard her reproaching someone for running dangerous risks, and she had added Kelly's name to the conversation for Cherry's benefit.

It was all clear now, with a hundred other little hints and clues. Cherry could only listen wide-eyed while Kelly went on. "That last night," he was saying "Rousseau was in a fury because the judge had told him that he must be prompter when they called him. He and Fran had been off all day, heaven knows where! And then to have to turn back into the servant again, to drive them to Burlingame and wait, with the other chaufeurs—it was too much for him! He was beside himself with his idolatry of her, he couldn't bear the thought of her being down there with her husband, dancing, being admired, perhaps spending the night at the club. He's only a young boy, of course, and the tastes of luxury that Fran gave him demoralized him, of course. She bought him silk shirts, extravagant robes and neckties, gave him money . . ."

"He said his mother was rich and ran a big hotel and she sent them to him!" May put in. She had come in to light Cherry's lamps.

That night the judge asked him to take the revolver and clean it," Kelly said, "reproved him for laziness and told him that he and Mrs. Marshbanks were going on a little holiday to Mexico City and would not take him or the car. The poor young fool blurted out that he loved her, that she had belonged to him for months, that he was going to give up his position and find work worthy of her. He says the judge lunged at him, across the desk, and that he fired. It may have happened that way."

"Fran!" Cherry gasped. The older woman was apparently incapable of speech.

"Fran knew immediately," Kelly went on. "She heard their voices and was halfway down the stairs when the end came. Rousseau only had to slip out, go to his room over the garage, partly undress and come running in with the others, as he did. By that time she'd rushed into the library and, I suppose, wiped the gun on her dressing gown with the feeling that there might be fingerprints on it."

"He was the one person we never thought of because he was here, right under our eyes," Cherry marveled.

"Driving the authorities to and fro, never looking at her or speaking to her," Kelly said with a nod. "But the police have been much less blind than we thought they were. They've been watching him for some time, and some of these other clues and blind leads were to make him feel he wasn't under suspicion."

"But, Kelly, whatever made them first suspect him? What gave him away?"

"One thing, they said, and then when they began to smell a rat, everything else fell in line. Especially when they planted him"

"And what was the plant?"

"Their taking Fran. That was a plant to see what he'd do. He loves her, you know, and the minute he thought she was in trouble he began all sorts of maneuvers to draw them off. He invented a strange Chinese who'd been hanging around the kitchen. He invented a telephone call that he'd taken that evening at eight o'clock. He made up a conversation with the judge that he'd had in which the judge said that 'an old enemy' whose prison term was just up had written him threatening letters. Mullins says he gave himself away over and over again. Of course, he's only a kid, and he couldn't keep up a lie very long."

"And what do you suppose gave them their first inkling so that they did all this planting and questioning?"

"Well, it seems it began when they were just sort of casting about for some sort of clue, asking the routine questions, you know," Kelly said. "They asked him what the relationship was between the judge and Fran—everything harmonious and serene, you know—and he answered along very carefully. He'd never heard anything unpleasant between them? Oh, no. Nothing like a quarrel? Oh, no. Mrs. Marshbanks had the reputation of being a rather highspirited lady did he know anything about that? She had always been most agreeable as far as he knew. Did he admire her? He just shrugged

"Mullins says they asked him finally—sort of carelessly, he said—if he knew the judge and Mrs. Marshbanks occupied separate bedrooms. That was, Rousseau answered, he believed to be not an unusual arrangement among Americans. But it was one to which the elderly husband of a handsome young woman might object, they suggested. And that made him flush up, poor kid, and he said he knew that the judge had agreed to that, indeed he had suggested it. Well, Mullins didn't show any surprise at the chauffeur knowing an intimate detail like that, but he went off on a side line—Rousseau's salary, days off, friends here—all that sort of thing. He had a sweetheart? Yes, back in France. When were they to be married? As soon as she could come to America. Her name? Marie La Crosse.

"Mullins let him think everything was satisfactory, but he went and had a look for Rousseau's naturalization papers. He hadn't any. He came over as a cabin boy and jumped ship in New York. He's been in this country five years, which would make him a little short of 14 when he got here. His story struck Mullins as queer all through. It seemed odd that a boy that age should be engaged when he left home, but Mullins says he doesn't know anything about French marriages, so he cabled our consul at Lyons, and they got hold of the prefect of police and asked for the address of Marie La Crosse. There was some delay, and then the answer came back that Charles Rousseau's aunt, Marie La Crosse, was still living with his parents just outside of Lyons. After that everything pointed one way!"

"And Fran loves him!" Cherry mused. "But the thing I can't forgive her, Kelly," she added with spirit, "is that she would have got you into it!"

"She was only sparring for time, then. She gave those letters to the police herself. But, as you know, there wasn't anything in them," the man said. "That was just a blind."

"Kelly, will they hang him?" the girl asked fearfully.

"Mullins says probably not. He's only a kid to begin with, and it wasn't premeditated. No; they'll give him a pretty stiff sentence and she'll spend all the time he's in jail working for him, comforting him. It's the end of Fran, of couse, as far as her present life and friends and ways of living go. But Mullins said he'd never seen letters like the ones she wrote Rousseau, or a woman crazier in love."

"And it's over!" Cherry said, in a wondering voice.

"Yep. No more Marshbanks mystery. He's signed a full confession, and turned over to them some of her letters. And they found about 20 of his to her in her locker in the gymnasium at the Athletic club."

"Fran never goes in for athletics!"

"That's perhaps why she kept them there."

"Oh, Kelly," Cherry breathed on a long note of relief, "can you believe that the men will get out of the house, and that we'll have nothing else to do but be married! Oh, and it's going to be spring, and I'm going to . . ."

"You still have to talk me over to this plot, Marchioness," Kelly said, as she paused.

"Well, I think if you'll send me up some tea, May, I'll go to my room," said old Dora Marshbanks, rising somewhat stiffly.

"Ah, stay here, Gran," Cherry said, "and we'll all have tea together. Maybe Amy'll come in too, and we'll talk plans."

"I know someone else who wants to talk plans," the old woman said, with a glance at Kelly.

"But there's no hurry," Cherry said, laughing. She had been sitting up in bed. Now like a joyous child she collapsed, slender, silk-clad body, loose mop of gold-and-tan-streaked hair, fragrant, warm young cheek against him.

Laughing, she put up her face for his kiss. 'After Monday week Kelly and I'll have all the time there is together!" she said. "Won't we Kelly?"

"Just as you say, Marchioness," Kelly answered meekly.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

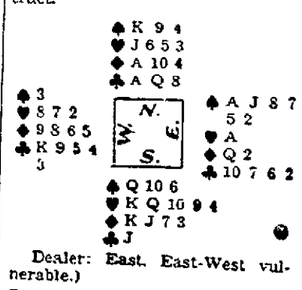
"The Authority on Authorities"

TRUMPS AS RE-ENTRIES

Just as the declarer sometimes has to use the dummy's trumps as re-entries so as to time the play of the hand efficiently, so must the defense use its trumps for that purpose on rare occasions. One of these comes when you have just ruffed a trick, want to get your partner in the lead again for another ruff, notice that the declarer possesses all outstanding aces except that in trumps and you still have two trumps yourself. A trump lead may then be the only possible means of getting your partner in the lead so he can offer you another ruff to set the contract.



Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

West naturally opened his singleton spade here, for two obvious reasons—because it was a singleton and because it offered the best chance for him to help in beating the contract, being in his partner's suit. Just as he hoped, he found East with the A, and the suit was returned promptly, West ruffing. Now he decided the best chance to get another couple of tricks would be in the diamond suit, so he led the diamond 5.

South won the diamond Q then with the K, led the club J and covered with the Q, laid down the club A and discarded his last spade, then offered the heart 3. East won with the A and fired back a third round of spades, but South ruffed with his K, dropped the rest of the trumps and completed an easy game.

If West had concentrated on fundamentals, after ruffing the second trick, he would have noted the chance for a second ruff if his partner had the heart A, so should have led a trump to him. East, upon winning that, could have led a third spade while South still had a spade left, and the resultant ruff would have beaten the contract.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Do you understand what is meant by experts when they speak of a "backward finesse"? Can you set up a couple of different examples to illustrate the use of the play? Can you set up a hand containing two cases of the play being used in two different suits, with cards of different rank involved in the two cases?

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Only three of the Mansfield Braves made the Ohio State league all-star team which will play the first-half champion Fremont Green Sox at Fremont Monday night.

Selection of two of the Mansfield players should occasion little surprise. Bobby Ankrum, best shortstop in the league, and Eddie Mutryn, home run clouting outfielder, were outstanding candidates for the stellar aggregation.

But the league sports writers gave the Braves' management a left-toed boot in the britches when they named Chuck Byers to the all-star mound staff.

They didn't realize that Chuck has been languishing in the Tribal-dog house for two weeks, and in that time had pitched to just one batter.

Byers has been threatening to pack up his duds and go home and I don't think I'd blame him a bit. If the rest of the league feels that he's good enough for the all-star team, he should be good enough to hurl for the Braves once in a while.

* * *

The all-star squad is composed of Jack Griffore, Findlay, Eddie Evans, Lima, Chuck Byers, Mansfield, Phil Roy, Fostoria, and Elmer Vasko, Tiffin, pitchers; Bill Campau, Tiffin, and George Ruley, Findlay, catchers; Francis Shank, Findlay, first base, Harry Stephenson, Findlay, second base, Bob Ankrum, Mansfield, shortstop, and Cecil Hubbard, Lima, third base; Gene Kavanaugh, Lima, Les Pruett, Fostoria, Ray Boone, Tiffin, and Ed Mutryn, Mansfield, outfielders; Johnny Cindric, Lima, utility, and Grover Hartley, Findlay, manager.

Why they didn't pick Alex Clowson for the utility job is a mystery to me. Having played every position on the team except third base and shortstop, Clowson is the only league player who could lay claim to being a utility man.

Redbirds Sweep Double Bill

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds really had reason to celebrate an open date today.

The No. 3 club in the American association race was the lone team to sweep its holiday double header yesterday, the twin triumph over Toledo advancing the Birds to within three games of first place Minneapolis and setting the stage for the important three game series with the leaders starting tomorrow.

* * *

Columbus pitching yesterday was in itself something to celebrate. Toledo got only eight hits in two games and failed to score until the final inning of the second contest in losing, 3 to 0 and 7 to 1. Murry Dickson hurled the seven inning opener while Harry Brecheen handled the second engagement.

Pace setting Minneapolis had to go 12 innings to win the second game 8-6 and gain an even break against St. Paul. The Saints took the first game, 7 to 5.

Lou Novikoff, Chicago Cub outsielder sent to Milwaukee, ran his consecutive hitting streak through 13 games, but the Brewers had to settle for a split with Kansas City. Milwaukee won the first game, 8 to 6, breaking a four game losing streak, but dropped the nightcap, 7 to 3.

At Indianapolis, second place Louisville went 11 innings to defeat the Indians, 1 to 0, in the opener, but lost the second, 4 to 3.

DISTANCE CASTING ON TAP AT CASTING CLUB'S MEET

CINCINNATI — (AP)—Distance casting of ⅜ and ½ ounce baits were featured events today at the Ohio State Association of Angling and Casting Clubs 19th annual tournament at Twin Lakes.

In women's events, Mrs. Grace Perkins of Dayton won the dry fly accuracy event and edged out Mrs. C. W. Marshall of East Liverpool in a tie-breaking round in the wet fly event.

EX-KING FAVORED

PIQUA —(AP)— The 1941 Western Ohio Tennis tournament entered the quarter and semi-finals stages of play here today with Dick Gould of Troy, 1939 champion, favored to regain his crown. Gould placed top-flight players in the early rounds, defeating W. Welage of Cincinnati in the second and Robert Kiefe of Mansfield in the third on identical scores of 6-3, 6-0. Doubles and singles finals are slated for Sunday.

Bagby Faces Sox

Starts In First of Two Game Series.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians settled down to earth today after their two one-run victories over the St. Louis Browns yesterday, and sent Jim Bagby, jr., to the mound against the Chicago White Sox.

Bagby has suffered defeats both times he has faced the White Sox, and has a five won and six lost record. Lefty Ed Smith, with a seven won and eight lost record, was named for Chicago in the first of the two day series here.

The Indians' double victory over St. Louis, 9 to 8 and 3 to 2 lifted the Tribe to two games behind the rained-out New York Yankees. But the Indians saw Bob Feller shelled from the box for the third successive time, and were forced to win both games by wild uprisings in their last chances at bat.

* * *

Feller fanned 10 and had a 4 to 1 lead until the fifth when two triples, a double and a single tied the score at 4 and 4. Three singles in the seventh squelched Feller.

You might think being in first place at the close of business on July Fourth didn't mean a thing to the St. Louis Cardinals —and you might be right.

They blew a double-header to the Chicago Cubs yesterday and turned the National league lead over exclusively to the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were kept in their locker room by an all-day rain which drenched the New York area.

Tradition has it that the teams in first place on Independence day go on to win the pennants, but last year the Dodgers and Cleveland Indians came away from the fireworks in front of the parade—and everybody knows they finished second.

This knowledge must have been some consolation to the Cardinals in losing all three games of their series with the Cubs, who thrilled a crowd of 39,423 fans at Chicago by rallying to take both of yesterday's contests, 6-5 and 5-2. This left the Redbirds a game out of the lead.

The rain that washed out the Dodgers and New York Giants also presented the New York Yankees-Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox-Philadelphia Athletics encounters in the American league and held total attendance for the holiday baseball program down to 134,114.

The Yankees has expected a crowd of between 60,000 and 70,000 for their double-header, which was to have been preceded by the unveiling of a monument to Lou Gehrig. This phase of the program was put over till Sunday, but the Yanks not only lost their big crowd, but also a full game of their American league lead.

* * *

The Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers divided the other American league games, the Sox taking the first 3-2, Detroit the second, 10-6.

* * *

In the other National league action Boston spanked the Phillies twice and Cincinnati divided with Pittsburgh. Bucky Walters pitched the Reds to a 6-0 shutout in the opener and Vince DiMaggio settled the nightcap 6-4, in favor of the Pirates with a three-run homer off Monte Pearson in the fourth.

* * *

Manny Slavo pitched six-hit ball for the Braves in breaking his 10-game losing streak with a 4-3 verdict. Jim Tobin did even better with a two-hit masterpiece in copping the second, 2-0.

Patty Praises Golferettes

Says They're As Good As Men On Fairway.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— If anyone ever invents a gadget guaranteed to get girls a bit more distance off the tee, then America's top-flight women golfers will be able to compete on even terms with the male stars.

At least, that's the conviction of pretty Patty Berg, red-haired, freckled professional from Minneapolis, and recent winner of the Western Open Golf championship. Patty, who doesn't ask odds from anyone on the golf course, had her say while acting as referee in the finals match of the first women's Intercollegiate golf championship.

Off the tee, men have a decided advantage," she said, "but the girls can give them a pretty fair tussle the rest of the way. On holes short enough for us to get home with a wood and an iron, we are just as good as the men. They may get close enough to use a short iron, while we have to use a long one, but that doesn't bother our better women players.

"Close to the green, and on the putting surface, the girls can make any shot as well as the men, and as a rule the feminine putting touch is better."

The petite professional admitted that the men, boasting stronger wrists, hit firmer chip shots than the girls, most of the women "flicking" the shorter ones.

"But most of the girls 'flick' them pretty well," she said.

"Give any of our leading players a wey to get that ball out there even with the men on the first shot, and you'll see some close matches between the men and women."

CEDAR POINT BALL CLUB COOLED BY O. S. R. NINE

The Cedar Point ball club, out of its native waters, was cooled by the Ohio State Reformatory nine yesterday 10-3.

The Reformatory club scored ten runs in the first two innings, six of them earned. Both clubs were wobbly in the field as the Points let five bobbles slip away and the Reformatory was guilty of four mistakes on the diamond. Johnston hit the lone circuit clout of the game as he made one out three for the home club.

DOUBLE CHAMP

DETROIT —(AP)— Wahoo Sam Crawford is one player who led both the National and American leagues in home run hitting. Sam topped the National with 16 while playing with Cincinnati in 1901 and led the American with seven in 1908. No player has ever won the American league homer championship with less than seven.

Plymouth Splits Doubleheader

The Plymouth Locomotive's ball club got the "go ahead" signal in only one game of their double feature yesterday with the Lucas Merchants at Plymouth as they lost the opener 17-1, but rallied to take the second tilt 4-3.

In the opener the visitors took Stone for 14 bingles while the Locomotives were trying to connect with the six hit hurling of Stetson. Barger and Swain sparkled at bat for the Merchants.

* * *

In the nightcap Weirs held the visitors to seven hits while behind him F. Buzard was having a perfect day at bat as he connected for three out of three to lead the Plymouth batsmen. Gerisch and Franks led the visitors ash-wielders each getting two out of three.

Braves Draw Blank at Lima

Shut Out In League Tilt, Win at Galion.

Mansfield Braves split even in a pair of holiday games yesterday, but they dropped the important Ohio State league tilt at Lima 6 to 0 and won the exhibition tilt at Galion 7 to 2 over the Bellevue Merchants.

* * *

Boskey of Lima let the Braves down with five scattered hits in the afternoon game. Dick Morse celebrated his return to the Mansfield lineup by collecting a double and single in four trips to the platter, and Bill Reinka got two singles in three times up. Bob Ankrum connected for the other hit, a single.

* * *

A home run by Third Baseman Hubbard sparked the 11-hit Panda attack against Jim Coleman.

Four double plays, two by Mansfield and two by Lima, provided the fielding feature.

Manager Alex Clowson went to the hill for the Braves in the game last night at Galion, and held the Bellevue club to eight hits in the seven-inning tilt.

Moore clouted a home run for the Braves while Tim Mangan got four hits in four times up, and Harry Siegbert three for three.

The Braves meet Lima at the Fairground tonight in their first home game of the second-half season.

HOMES REFLECT STEAMBOAT ERA

Mississippi River Pilot and Son Pattern Homes After Packets.

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — Two homes, built by a river pilot and his son to retain some of the lore of the old Mississippi packets, stand beneath the levee in the older section of this city.

Capt. M. P. Doullut, who spent his entire life on the river until his death in 1928, built one of the homes on the pattern of an old river boat, with its stacks, beaded gingerbread and silvered iron—a reminder of what had gone before.

Capt. Doullut was one of the last of the old pilots who worked the river before the advent of modern steamboats. He hated to see the old life pushed out—a push that began at the start of the present century.

With his son, Paul, and a Negro helping, Capt. Doullut built his home in a year and a half. The two-storied building is topped by a pilot house with windows on all sides. On the first floor—the engine room of a river boat—he built his living room, dining room, kitchen and servants' quarters.

Four bedrooms occupied the second floor, with a hall and steps leading to the octagon-shaped superstructure. Steamboat stacks, on two sides of the house, serve as chimneys.

Surrounding both the roof levels, the house and the pilot cabin is ornate silvered iron work under which hangs the beaded gingerbread that typifies the decor of the packet.

Paul Doullut built a duplicate of his father's home eight years afterward several blocks from the first house. When the levee was moved back later, he was forced to move his home across the street from his father's.

The pilot houses are seldom used any more except as a storage place and an occasional view out over the river. Guides tell many an interesting tale to the idle tourists.

Mrs. Doullut continues to occupy the original home, while the son and his family live in the other.

EARLY DEALINGS ARE TRENDLESS ON MART TODAY

Price Changes Insignificant As Market Gets Off To Slow Start.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Insignificant price changes either way made for a trendless stock market in today's early dealings.

At a slow opening gainers included Chrysler, Western Union, and J. C. Penney. Off a shade were Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, General Motors and General Electric and Atlantic Coast Line.

Market analysts found encouragement in the survey of the Engineering News-Record disclosing June heavy construction awards, boosted by the expansion of defense building contracts, topped all existing records. The month's volume of $589,221,000 exceeded the previous peak established last October by 5 per cent.

Financial quarters saw another hopeful indicator in the Associated Press index of industrial activity which, after making allowances for July Fourth factory shut-downs and other seasonal variations, stepped up this week to the fastest daily pace in history.

BRINGS FIREMEN

STOCKTON, Cal. —(INS)— A self-administered "hot foot" on a cold winter night brought the fire department to the home of Mrs. Maria Restano. Suffering cold feet, Mrs. Restano heated an electric iron and placed it in bed. Shortly after midnight she was awakened by excessive heat. The iron had burned through the bedding and only the efforts of city firemen averted a possible house fire.

NAMES LIVE ON AS MOTOR CAR PIONEERS FADE

Ford and Nash Are Active But Many Others Are Dead or Retired.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Only a few of the pioneers who gave their names and personalities to the automobile industry still are active in their business.

Some are retired, living comfortably, while others who rose to fame and fell in the tides of business are living in comparative obscurity.

Henry Ford, founder of the Ford Motor company, philanthropist and rugged individualist, is one of those most active in his company's affairs. At 78, the graying genius still is the principal power behind Ford policies.

Charles E. Nash, chairman of the board of Nash-Kelvinator corporation, still is going strong at 78 but there have been rumors of an impending retirement.

Ransom E. Olds, who founded the Olds Motor works in 1897 and later the Reo (a name from his initials) Motor company, has lived in retirement at Lansing, Mich., for several years. He is 76 now.

Others in retirement are Charles King, who built the out-moded King automobile; William C. Durant, former chief of General Motors corporation and designer of the car bearing his name.

Fred and Charles Fisher, who made Fisher automobile bodies a byword, are away from the business now but still live in Detroit. They sold out to General Motors in 1926.

There were other famous brother combinations. The five Studebaker boys — Henry, Clement, Peter, Jacob and John—made an automobile plant out of their wagon works at South Bend, Ind. James and Warren Packard found fame in a little electrical company at Warren, O., the forerunner of the Parkard Motor Car company.

John and Horace Dodge gave the industry a sturdy car and left large families to perpetuate their name. All these brothers died years ago, but their names are as common on highways today as they were in their own home towns while they were living.

Walter P. Chrysler died a year ago; John N. Willys four years ago, and David Buick, who introduced the valve-in-head engine, has passed on.

Still a mystery is the disappearance of Rudolph Diesel, German inventor of the Diesel engine, from a channel steamer a few months before the start of the World war while he was en route to show British manufacturers some important papers.

Another name, buried forever to the future generations but a familiar one to old-timers, is Charles E. Duryea, whose "horseless carriage" on the streets of Detroit in 1896 left the citizenry gaping. Duryea died a few years ago.

German Fliers Worthy Foes Asserts 'American Eagle'

PASADENA, Cal.—(U.P.)—Britain's war pilots have the greatest respect for the fighting ability of Nazi fliers and their "hell-diving" planes, according to Byron Fees Kennerly, flight commander of the American Eagle Squadron of the British Royal Air Force.

Home from the wars on a four-month furlough, Flight Commander Kennerly said the Nazis have "just about the fastest fighting planes in the world . . . and they certainly know how to handle them."

The tanned, 32-year-old Spitfire pilot, who was a building contractor here before he left for England to join the R. A. F., praised the German planes, especially the Heinkel 113 and the Messerschmitt 110, but he believes the Americans and British will soon come out with superior fighters.

"Why, the Heinkel 113 can fly at an altitude of 40,000 feet," Kennerly said, "and the Messerschmitt 109 will dive you into the sea. If a Spitfire dives for the Nazi, it can't get too low or it might not pull out."

The flight commander of the squadron which may equal the glory of the Lafayette Escadrille scoffed at rumors of a shortage of British planes.

"England is covered with R. A. F. fighter planes and her supply of excellent American and British bombers is rapidly growing," he declared.

"American fighters still aren't as good as the British Hurricanes, which were built five years ago, but our bombers are unsurpassed. Hudson-Lockheeds are used by the Coastal Command and are standing up marvelously."

Kennerly, who took up flying as a hobby several years ago, declared that while several types of German planes were in use as far back as the Spanish civil war, they have "proved equal to anything thrown against them . . . up till now, anyway."

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

YES, HONEY.. CAPTAIN WARREN, THE RICHEST MAN IN TOWN, WAS VERY ANGRY YESTERDAY WHEN CAPTAIN JIM REFUSED HIS OFFER TO TAKE CHARGE OF YOU AFTER WE LEAVE
CAPTAIN WARREN LOOKED TERRIBLE MAD — HIS FACE GOT AWFUL RED, AN'—
OH, HE'LL GET OVER THE SHOCK OF LEARNING—
— THERE ARE SOME THINGS MONEY CANNOT BUY— YOU HAPPEN TO BE ONE OF THEM! CAPTAIN WARREN HAS MILLIONS OF DOLLARS AND CONTINUES WORKING LIKE A SLAVE TO ADD TO HIS PILE—
DARRELL McCLURE
HE HAS NO TIME TO WASTE ON SUCH SILLY THINGS AS AFFECTION, FRIENDSHIP, HOME OR ANY OF THE SIMPLE INGREDIENTS OF HAPPINESS
GEE, I GUESS THAT'S WHY HE NEVER LAUGHS AT ANYTHING
OH, ANNIE — I'VE BEEN LOOKING AND LOOKING ALL OVER TOWN FOR YOU!
HONEST, I'M TERRIBLE SORRY — 'BOUT AN HOUR AGO MARGY TOLD ME YOU WERE LOOKIN' FOR ME
HA, HA — I WAS LOOKING FOR YOU AND YOU WERE LOOKING FOR ME — ISN'T THAT FUNNY?
GLORYOSKY, I'M TERRIBLE GLAD WE FOUND EACH OTHER
YOU KNOW I HAVEN'T ANY BROTHERS OR SISTERS AND I LOVE YOU — AND FATHER AND MOTHER LOVE YOU AND WE HAVE A CUTE LITTLE ROOM IN OUR HOUSE — RIGHT NEXT TO MINE —
DARRELL McCLURE
I THINK YOU'RE SWELL AN' I'D JUST LOVE TO BE YOUR SISTER — BUT I GOTTA LIVE WHEREVER CAPTAIN JIM SEZ — BUT HONEST, IF HE SEZ I CAN LIVE AT YOUR HOUSE, THAT WILL MAKE ME FEEL GLAD ALL OVER
HOWDY, ANNIE — I'M A MONKEY'S UNCLE IF YOU AIN'T AS WELCOME AS A BREEZE IN THE DOLDRUMS
OH, THANK YOU, CAPTAIN EZRA
I DON'T LIKE TO EAT ALONE AN' I WAS AFRAID I'D HAVE TO THROW AWAY THIS POT OF FISH CHOWDER—
THROW IT AWAY ???
OH, CAPTAIN EZRA — DON'T DO THAT!! I'M NOT VERY HUNGRY AN' YOU KNOW THAT POOR FISHERMAN, MR. NETTS — HE'S AWFUL SICK, AN'—
DARRELL McCLURE
GEE, CAPTAIN EZRA — WHERE ARE YOU GOIN' ??
I'M JUST TAKING A LITTLE MEDICINE TO ONE OF DOCTOR ROONEY'S PATIENTS!
GOODBYE, CAPTAIN EZRA — I'M TERRIBLE SORRY I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE HERE UNTIL YOU'D GONE
YES, CAPTAIN EZRA CAME ABOARD TO ASK US IF WE WOULDN'T LET HIM TAKE CARE OF YOU AFTER WE SAIL — WE'VE ALWAYS LIKED HIM —
GLORYOSKY — THAT'LL BE GRAND — NOW HE WON'T BE LONESOME NO MORE! I KIN TAKE CARE OF HIS CUTE LITTLE HOUSE — WASH THE DISHES — RUN ERRANDS — I KNOW HE'S KINDA POOR, BUT I THINK HE'S SWELL —
DARRELL McCLURE
"KINDA POOR"?? HA, HA — WHY, YOUNGSTER, THAT WISE OLD CODGER COULD BUY AND SELL MOST OF THE FOLKS IN THIS TOWN —
YES, HONEY — CAPTAIN EZRA IS REALLY WEALTHY, BUT —
IT'S THE TRUTH, YOUNGSTER — I DID ASK CAPTAIN JIM TO LET ME TAKE CARE OF YOU WHILE HE WAS GONE — 'COURSE, I WAS DISAPPOINTED WHEN HE SAID, "NO"
I WAS, TOO
AFTER I SAT AND THOUGHT A BIT I KNEW JIM WAS RIGHT — I'VE FOLLOWED THE SEA ALL MY LIFE — NEVER HAD A CHICK OR CHILD AND YOU CAN'T TEACH AN OLD DOG NEW TRICKS —
ANY FOOL CAN PILOT A SHIP IN SMOOTH WATER — BUT YOU NEED AN EXPERIENCED HAND AT THE WHEEL WHEN A STORM COMES — I FIGGER I WAS THINKING MOSTLY OF MYSELF — NOT YOU —
YOU NEED WIMMEN FOLKS AND YOUNGSTERS OF YOUR OWN AGE — NOT AN OLD DERELICT LIKE ME! BUT DON'T WORRY — IT DOESN'T MATTER WHERE YOU ANCHOR — I'LL BE STANDING BY WITH A WEATHER-EYE OPEN!!
DARRELL McCLURE
LOOK, ZERO!! THAT'S THE RICH, FAMOUS DR. HYGHES' CAR — THE DOCTOR IS VISITIN' MR. NETTS, THE POOR, SICK FISHERMAN — ISN'T IT GRAND? NOW I'LL BETCHA MR. NETTS WILL BE ALL OKAY
HE'S OUTA DANGER? THAT'S SWELL — YOU WERE AWFUL SMART TO SEND FOR DR. HYGHES
ME SEND FOR DR. HYGHES? WHY, CHILD, I DIDN'T SEND FOR HIM
YOU TOLD CAPTAIN EZRA MY MAN WAS SICK, AN'—
YES, MA'AM — RIGHT AWAY HE CAME OVER WITH A BIG POT OF FISH CHOWDER — HE SAID THAT WAS THE KIND OF MEDICINE TO CURE ANY SICKNESS
AND THEN CAPTAIN EZRA SENT FOR DR. HYGHES, 'CAUSE HE KNOWS WE HAVEN'T THE MONEY TO PAY A FAMOUS DOCTOR — BUT DON'T LET CAPTAIN EZRA KNOW I TOLD YOU — IF ANYONE ACCUSES HIM OF DOING A BIT OF CHARITY — HE DENIES IT AN' GETS MADDER THAN A WET HEN
